Dear Jimmy,
I'm so happy that we've finally gotten together. You're one of the sweetest and most wonderful boys I know and I'll never forget you. Hope we're always together
Love always,
Ginny
P.S. you've got beautiful blue eyes!

STATE LINE

Thousands of motorists, both out-of-state and resident, pass quietly over the border line between Washington, D.C. and Maryland. At the state line begins Maryland Route 193, commonly referred to as Connecticut Avenue.

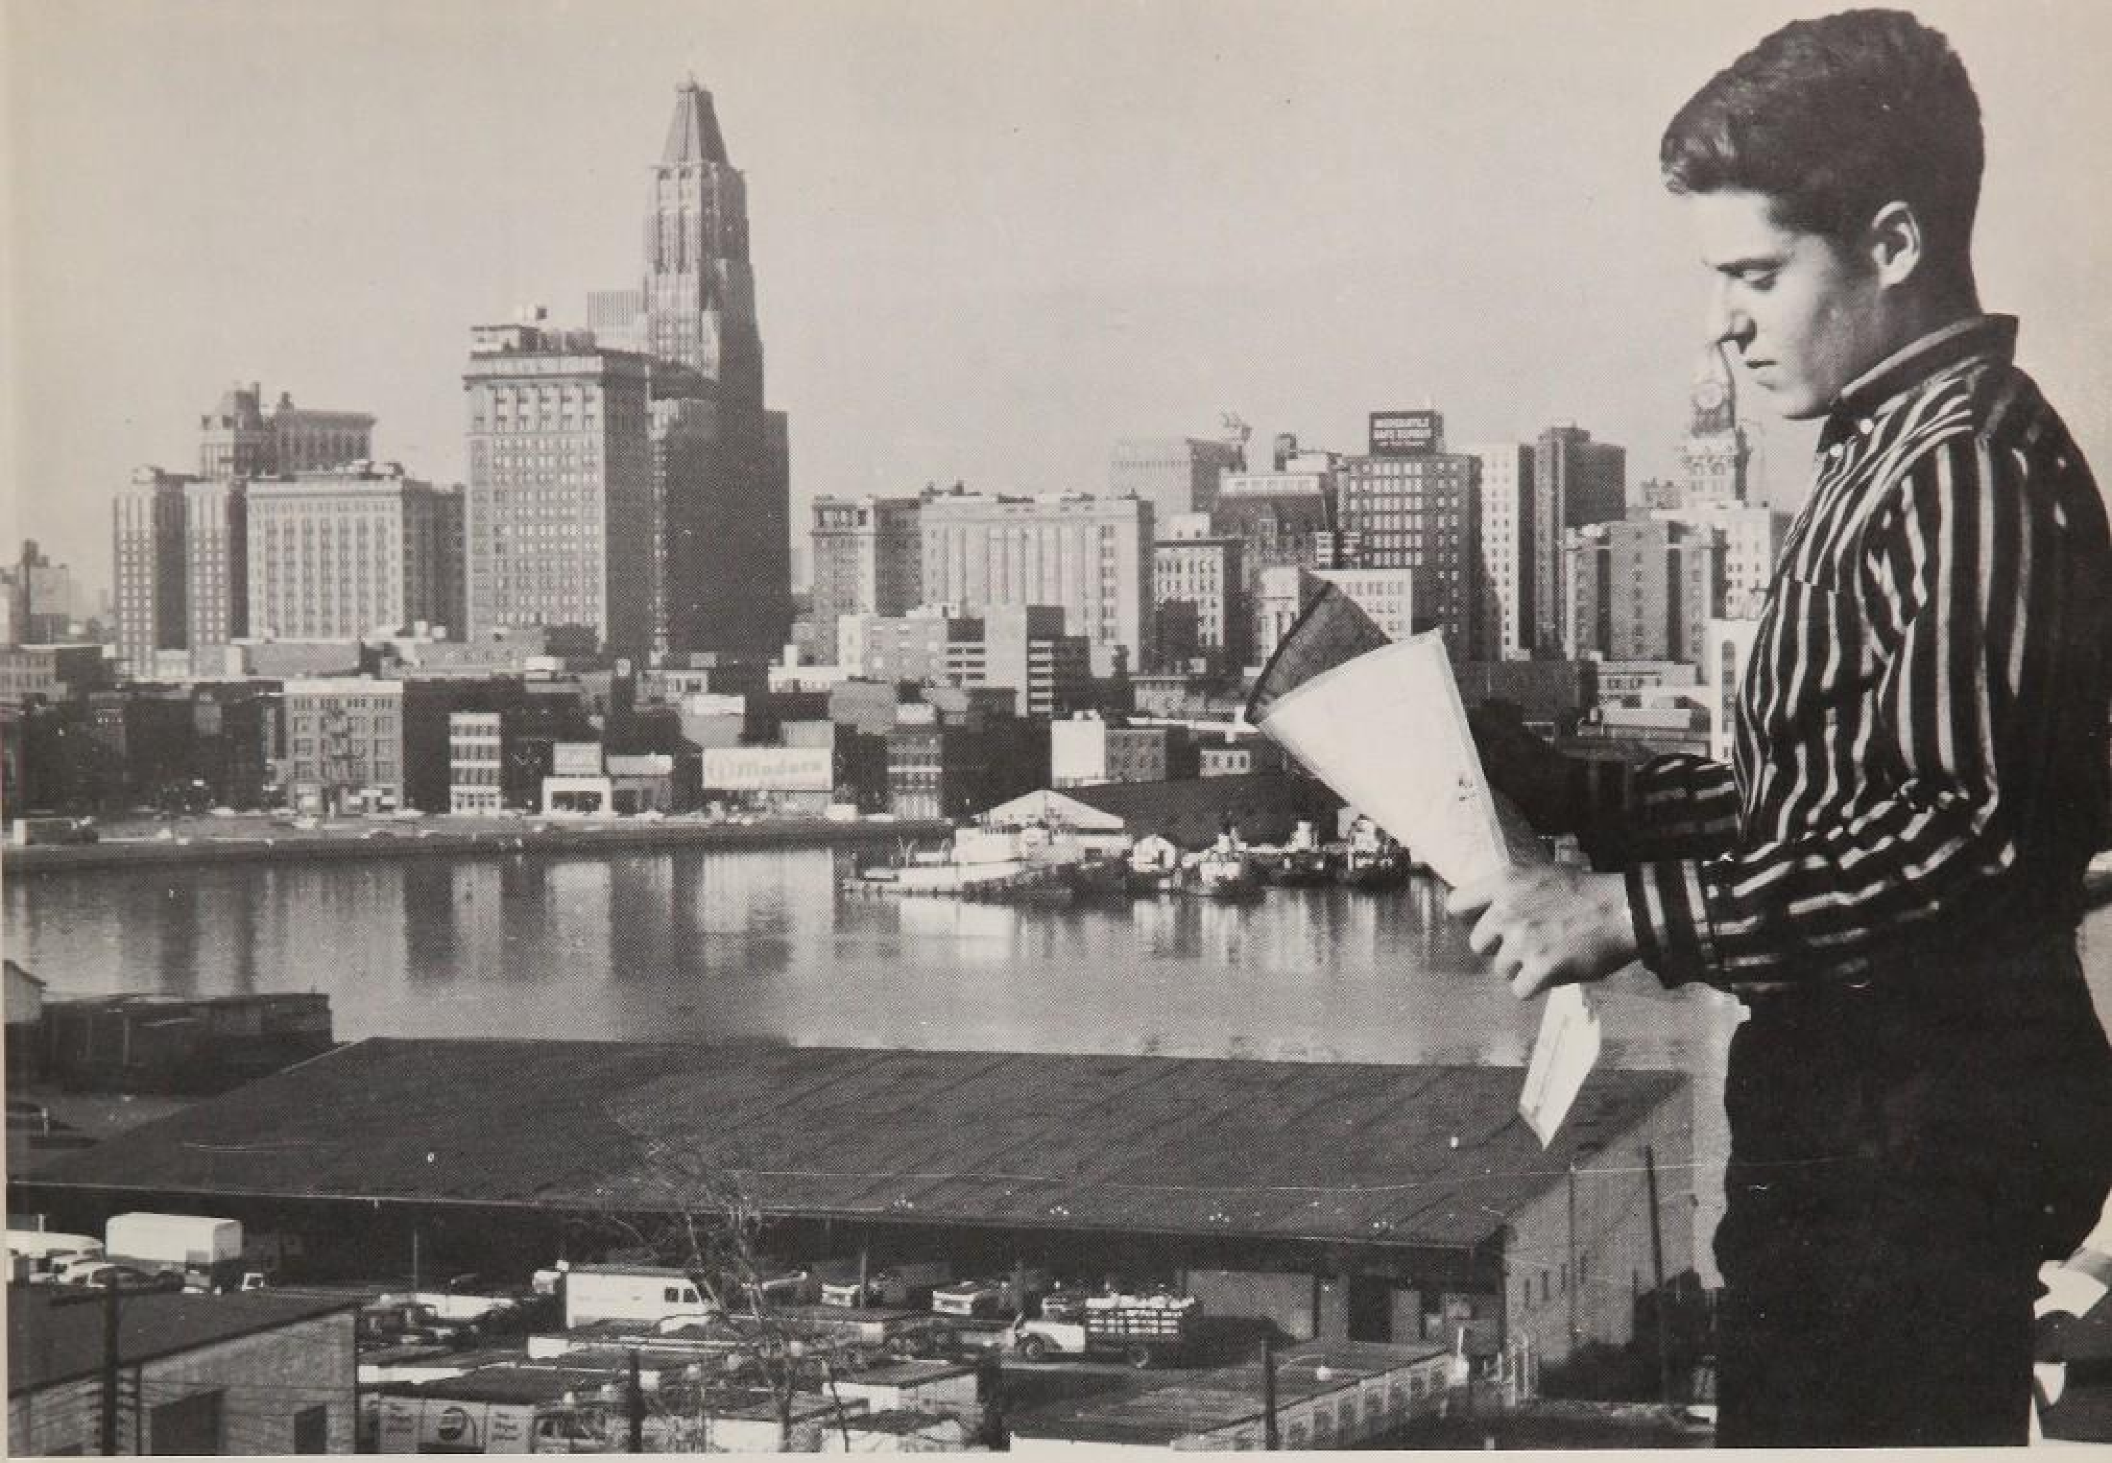
Orderly rows of haystacks mark Maryland's fall landscape, products of a year of growth and investment. This farm in Woodsboro, Maryland, shows evidence of a prosperous season.



Confused by Baltimore's intricate maze of streets and buildings, Howard Alenier stops at Federal Hill Park near Baltimore Harbor to consult his map.

Routine of Fall Activity

Fall brings a flurry of activity
To Maryland;
Still tanned from Summer Vacation,
She must return to the regimen
Of classrooms and offices,
Of dockyards and farms.
There is little time to look up and see
How the face of Maryland
Is being changed.

Historical landmarks reflect Maryland's interest in the past. Judi Tal finds a covered bridge at Loys Station near Frederick a peaceful spot for study.

Recently completed, the National Cathedral in northeast Baltimore, Maryland, is a national landmark of historical importance and religious significance.

Activity Thrives During Winter Season

With Winter
Maryland settles into a routine;
Work, sleep and study
Fall into a regular schedule,
And there is again time
To look around,
To see what Maryland offers
For leisure hours.

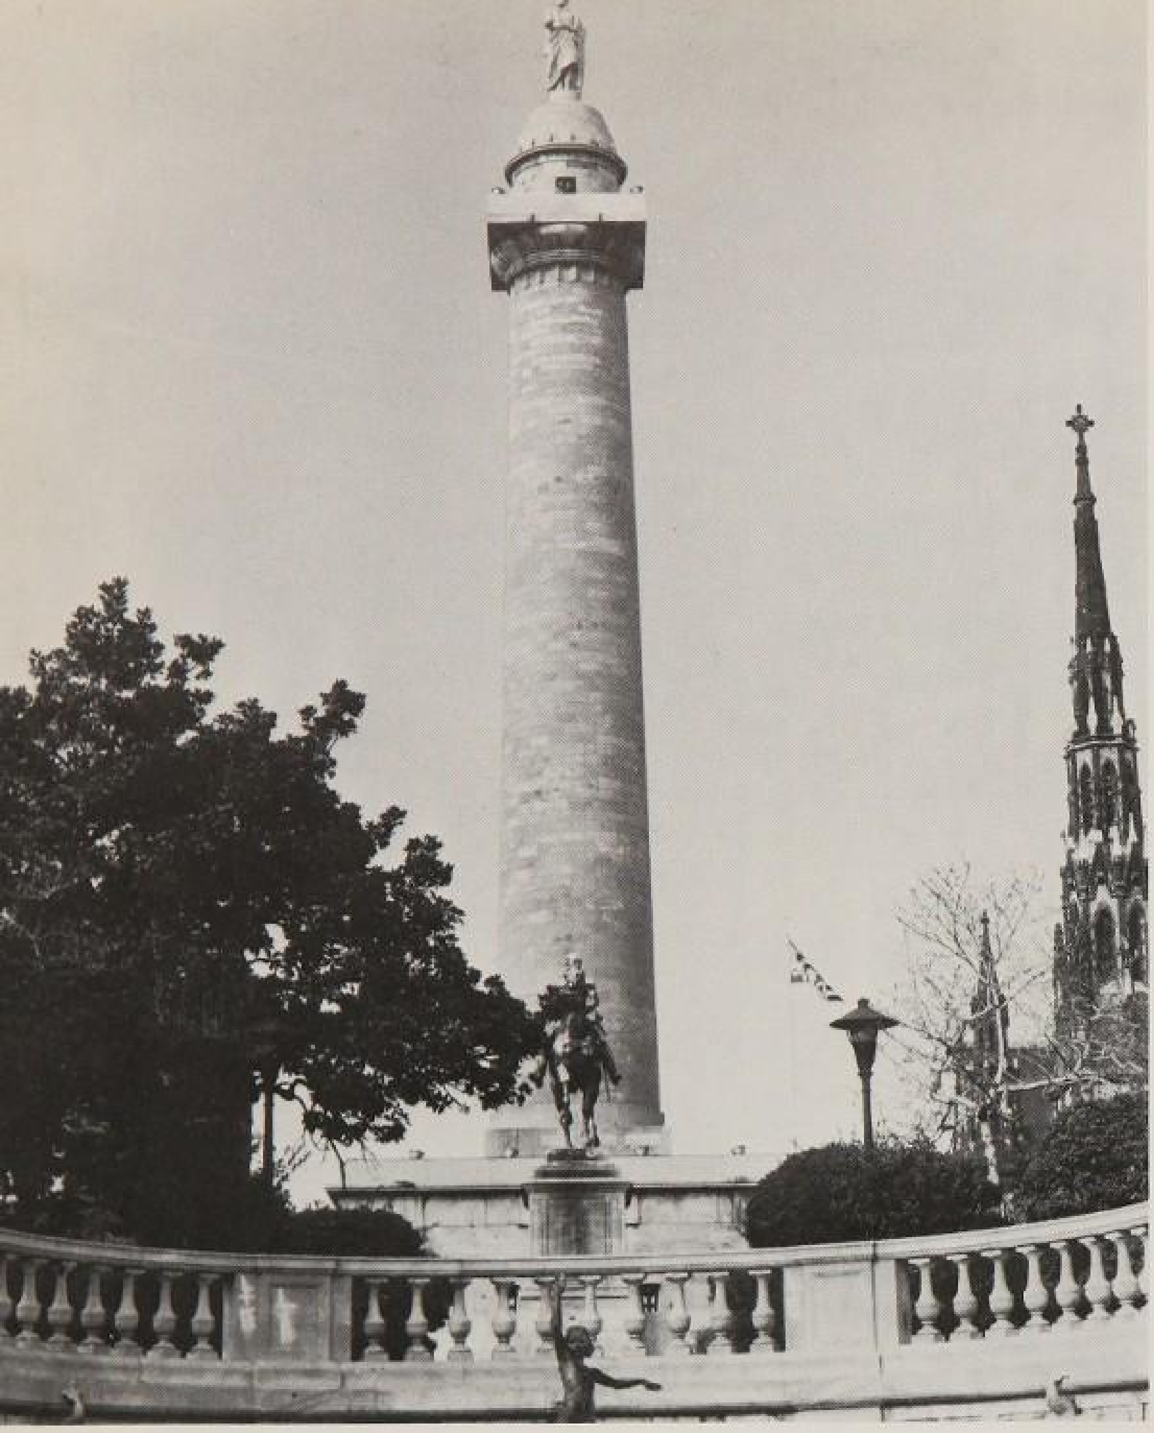
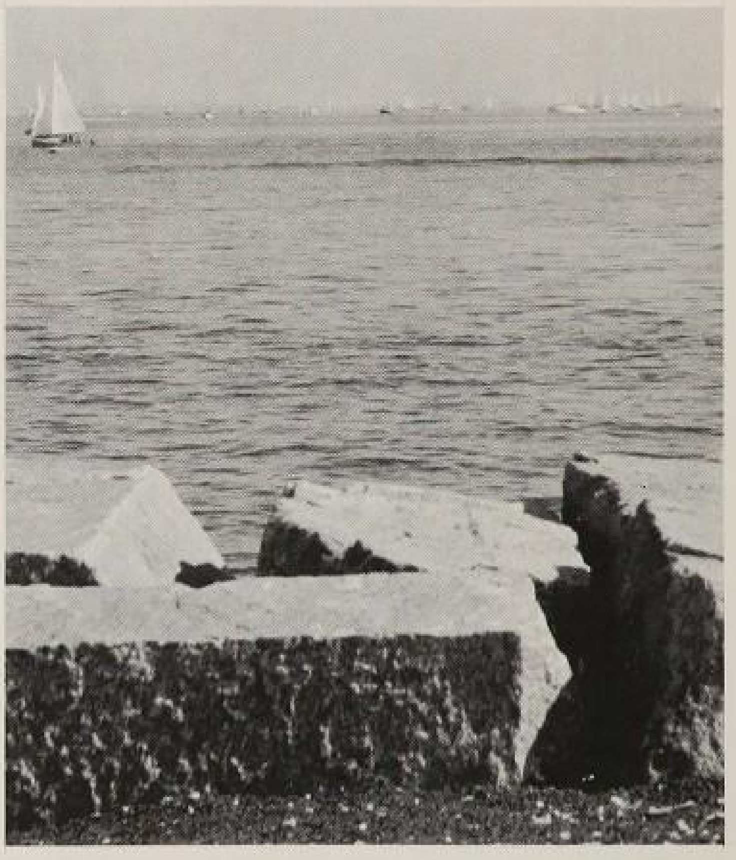
Spring Revitalizes Maryland's Spirit



Baltimore's many famous historical landmarks include the Washington Monument.



To Maryland's many sailing enthusiasts, the Chesapeake Bay provides an ideal location for a relaxing weekend cruise.

Maryland's history has always been linked traditionally with the sea; the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis is an important part of the heritage. A row of sailboats tiedup on the Severn River is maintained by the Academy to train midshipmen in the handling of small craft.

Faculty Furthers Learning

Maryland is learning—
She is schools, colleges, and universities, where education is a full-time job. Maryland is Cities and farms,
Homes and factories,
Where education continues
She is people,
Whose learning is constant, a school
Where the search for knowledge never ends, for students and teachers.

Changing roles from teacher to student, Miss Nemesh walks to a 4:30 class at the University of Maryland.

Relaxing in his quiet office, Principal Harold Packard discusses the administration's plans for the school year as Helene Weisfield busily takes notes.

Administrators Co-ordinate School Efforts

Principal Mr. Packard verifies his schedule of appointments with Mrs. Winner.

Always interested in the welfare of Northwood, Mr. Packard consistently worked for the betterment of the school, its students, and its faculty.

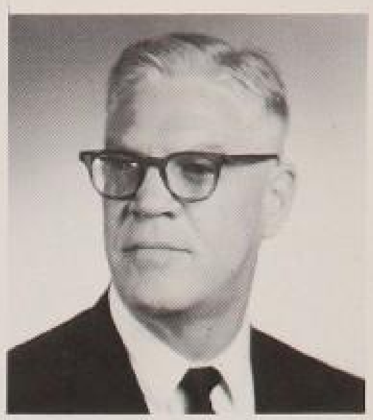
Having received his A.B. Degree from Colorado College and his M.A. from the University of Denver, our principal taught social studies in Denver, Washington, D.C., and Montgomery County before becoming an administrator.

Mr. Packard finds Northwood's greatest strength to be its strong academic program. His willingness to accept new methods and programs brought many innovations to the curriculum, such as Program Geometry, Electricity, and an extension to the Work-Oriented program. He would like to institute a drama department and a better work experience course for those who are not planning to attend college following graduation.

Meeting and overcoming the many problems faced by a school principal, Mr. Packard finds the rewards due to a man of his abilities.

Vice-Principals Ease Administrative Load

Maurice Ward



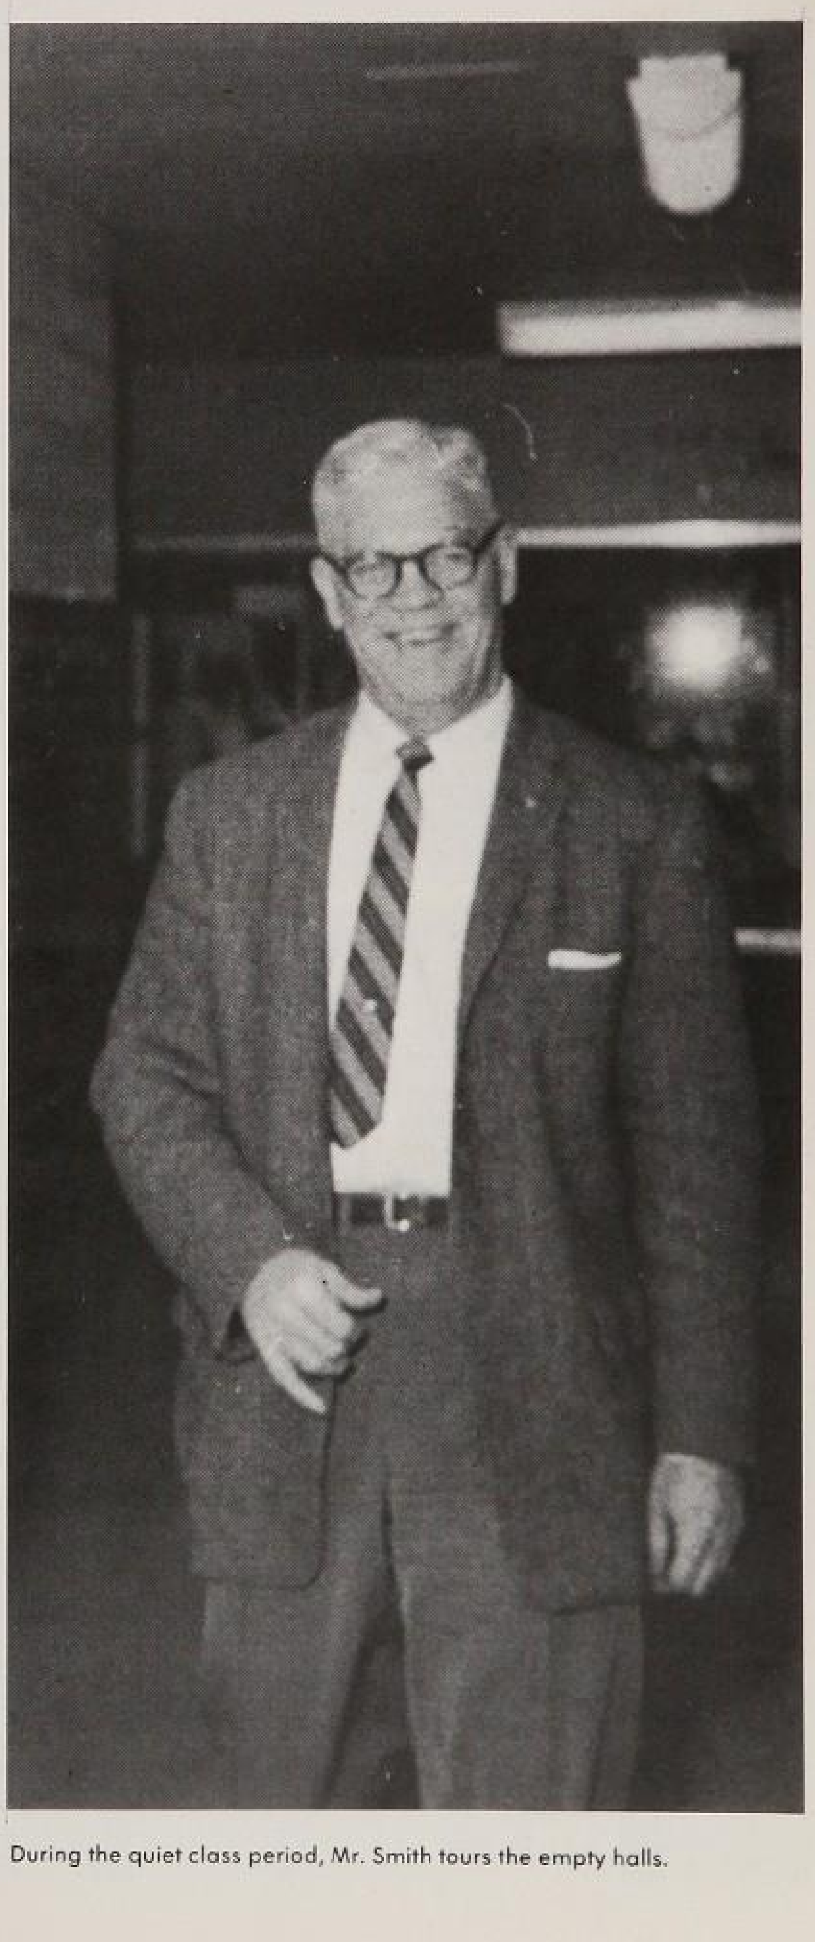
Robert Smith

Assisting Mr. Packard were Vice-Principals Mr. Smith and Mr. Ward. After receiving his Bachelor of Science and Master of Education degrees at the University of Maryland, Mr. Smith began his professional career at Richard Montgomery High School. There he taught such subjects as history, math, and science. Revealing athletic talents, he also coached football and baseball. Advancing his position, he became first a counselor and then an assistant principal before coming to Northwood.

Mr. Ward obtained his Bachelor of Science and Master of Science also at the University of Maryland. He began his career by teaching science, vocational agriculture, and math in several upstate Maryland high schools. Before assuming the position of Vice-Principal, he was a member of Northwood's faculty.

Initiating and enforcing school policies were the major responsibilities of these two men. Their daily duties included checking attendance, co-ordinating class activities, and disciplining students. Arranging bus schedules and maintaining the building and grounds were other facets of their job.

Meeting with new student teachers, Mr. Ward points out the Northwood area.



During the quiet class period, Mr. Smith tours the empty halls.

Background Aides

Hub of many school activities, the secretaries moved at a breathtaking pace as they attended to the multitude of jobs vital to the operation of Northwood. The buzz of the switchboard was omnipresent. Organization of notices in the daily bulletin, maintenance of student records, and compilation of absence and early departure lists were among their many duties. Visitors to the school were cordially greeted and given information.

Providing food for hungry students was the job handled by Mrs. Disney, cafeteria manager, and her staff. Each day these staff members efficiently served a carefully planned meal.

All students were again assured of excellent health care from the school nurse, Mrs. Carnvale. All types of emergencies, from headaches to broken bones, were treated gently and efficiently.

Deserve Students' Sincere Appreciation

Students often take for granted the careful planning behind their smooth running schedules. The counseling staff spent much time co-ordinating the needs and interests of the student body. As the year progressed, the counselors' job became more difficult as students required course changes, personal counsel, and help with schedules.

Spring brought college boards, Merit Scholarship competition, and jittery seniors waiting to hear from the college of their choice. Sophomores and juniors had the usual problems of preparing registration forms for next year's courses. Grade counselors busily prepared to greet the incoming sophomores, as Miss Scott, college counselor, wrote recommendations for college-bound seniors.

Often unexpressed gratitude is due the custodial staff, who devoted many extra hours to the maintenance of the school.

With the assistance of three library aides, librarians Mrs. Ceranton and Mrs. O'Neil checked books, collected fines, and ordered new selections, as they maintained the efficiency of the library.

Class Aids Thought And Communication

Various deviations from regular curriculum enriched Northwood's English classes this year. Several twelfth grade classes enjoyed both Hamlet and Macbeth at the movies, while Miss Ruddle's seniors visited the Folger Library in Washington, D.C., to study books, paintings, and antiques of the Shakespearian era. Showing an appreciation for drama, Mrs. Pascucci's eleventh graders enjoyed Miller's "After the Fall" at the National Theater. Students also attempted their own performances of plays studied in class, such as "Riders to the Sea" and "The Glass Menagerie."

All English classes, regardless of grade level, perfected writing skills with two goals in mind—the Scholastic Magazine's Writing Awards Contest and Reflections, Northwood's literary magazine. Writings for each were approved by English teachers before entry.

Vacation activities helped teachers make their classes more interesting and stimulating. Mrs. Kosofsky, working for her Master's degree, took a course in American Literature at Maryland University last summer, while Miss Ruddle headed a camp paper in Pendleton, Virginia. Mrs. Bond traveled to the Mid-West, visiting Mark Twain's home as well as the cave where he was inspired to write Tom Sawyer.

Mr. Holland checks semester exams with his eleventh grade English class.

Culture Enriches the Language Curriculum

Extensive reading formed a large part of Northwood's language curriculum. Mrs. Boone's classes concentrated on Moliere's plays, Le Bourgeois Gentilhomme and Tartuffe. Mrs. Spector's classes enjoyed singing French songs. Spanish classes, like beginning French classes, studied from dialogues. A regular text served as a helpful supplement in the German department. The beauty of Virgil was the major concern of Northwood's Latin classes.

Learning along with their students, Mrs. Spector studied twentieth century French literature at Maryland University, while Mrs. Ward visited Spain last summer after attending a foreign language workshop. Meeting the French people while learning their language, Mrs. Johnson studied two years in Paris at the Sorbonne before coming to Northwood.

History Links the Past to the Present

Mr. Frey uses his planning period to record the day's Psychology grades.

History students learned about man's past to prepare for a better future. Toward this end, World History classes delved into the cultures of ancient Greece and Rome. In Modern European History, pupils pursued the study of Europe since the Renaissance. United States History classes spent the year learning of our own changing history. Each President from George Washington to our present Chief of State was carefully analyzed and discussed to broaden understanding of America.

Those taking Mr. Higgins' Problems of Democracy course faced the perplexing questions of our modern world. The November elections stimulated particular interest.

One-semester courses in Psychology and Sociology explored man and his environment. Analyzing individuals and group relationships promoted a deeper consciousness of human associations.

Expanding Courses Explore Our World

Over the summer months, the science teachers of Northwood were always on the move. On a five-week tour, Dr. Merritt visited ten major countries and three principalities. Mr. Hogue spent his vacation traveling through the Middle Western states and participating in a course on Child Study at Maryland University. At the American Institute of Biological Sciences, Mr. Morris refreshed his knowledge of new Biology for high school students. Mr. Scott taught a summer session of Biology at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School.

At Northwood, Biology students discovered the intricate differences between plant and animal life and the individual systems of the human body. Through dissections in the modern laboratories and lectures of special speakers, elementary Botany and Human Physiology was taught to the Advanced Biology classes. The future chemists combined the theories and the laws of the elements with practical knowledge from lab experiments to achieve a fuller appreciation of chemistry. Students taking Earth Science became better acquainted with the world around them and its different parts. In Physics, students learned the laws governing the behavior of matter and their applications.

Thought And Practice Add Up To Satisfaction

Mathematics at Northwood developed logical thought processes and laid the foundations for further studies in college or job.

Differentiating algebraic functions was a part of the Introductory Analysis course which prepared students for college Advanced Placement tests. Many times students were up late finding the limits of polynomials or solving problems of volumes by the Fundamental Theorem of Calculus. Trigonometry and Advanced Algebra classes spent time graphing polar equations and learning the use of logarithms to solve right triangles.

Programmed texts in Geometry were continued in use for a second year. Mrs. Jordan and Mr. Sharbaugh met with a class of one hundred each morning in the cafeteria to experiment in teaching oversized groups. Students in all geometry courses spent a good part of their homework time proving theorems and corollaries from their knowledge of definitions and postulates.

Algebra students worked with the binomial theorem, solved simultaneous equations, and graphed conic sections. Pupils learned some of the fundamentals of simple equations and space relationships in Basic Algebra Geometry.

Courses Provide Preparation For Business

Business courses developed understanding and appreciation of the commercial world and its relation to the consumer. In General Business, banking, budgeting, saving, and insurance were discussed. Business Math students applied mathematical skills to problems concerning payrolls, financial statements, and income taxes. Elements of a contract as applied to the consumer and the principles of practical economics were discussed in Business Law and Economics, each a one-semester course.

Students taking shorthand, typing, bookkeeping, and office practice became adept at operating such business machines as automatic calculators and adding machines. Such courses prepared pupils for the Civil Service examination, which was given several times at Northwood.

Special subjects served to enrich Northwood's curriculum. Aggressive physical activity was emphasized in the boys' gym classes in football and wrestling units. Coeducational volleyball and square dancing were also part of the program. Driver Education was supervised by Mr. Bolyard and Mr. Maloni by a radio communication system.

Art classes experimented with many different techniques in tempera. Art I students emphasized space and the third dimension. Art II and III students designed posters to publicize school events. Self-portrait work and interior decorating were important in Art IV classes.

Chorus classes concentrated on developing basic singing skills, such as proper breathing techniques. Various choral groups, including Concert Choir, Girls' Glee Club, and Mixed Chorus, performed at school assemblies. Students received instruction in musical theory in Music Appreciation classes. The year's program included music from various periods.

Elective Program Exhibits Major Qualities

Students received practical training in Northwood's extensive Industrial Arts program. Those interested in teaching in this field were offered preparation in the Industrial Arts Research Lab.

Sounds of splintering wood emanated from "D" wing as woodworking students constructed such projects as skiis and small boats. Those wishing to work with pure and alloy metals fashioned bowls, lamps, and jewel boxes in General Metals.

Graphic Arts taught students the fundamentals of letter-press printing. The Northwood print shop produced signs, programs, and other materials which supplemented class and assembly programs.

Electricity developed specialized skills in that field among pupils, while potential engineers and draftsmen expanded their knowledge of the industrial processes in Drafting and Architectural Drawing. Garbed in overalls and spattered with grease and oil, Auto Mechanics students learned the principles of overhauling motors.

Maryland Affords Many Opportunities

Maryland is Youth—
Like herself, her people, are alive, restless,
and active.
Maryland is well-suited to
Her peoples' needs—
She has parks and beaches
to fill their summers;
for their nights and weekends,
She has many restaurants,
theaters, clubs, and bowling alleys;
her schools offer a constant stream of dances, of plays and of parties.
To maintain their pace
Maryland's people must be active.

A local restaurant offers Karen Hilty and Vic Mudrick a place to go for a snack after a basketball game.

On Indian Madras Day, Judy Elliston helps Mike Schatzow make his selection for the prettiest baby while Carol Ackermann indicates her choice.

Helping to build the bonfire, Bill Bates unloads boxes and crates that will be burned at the evening pep rally.

Homecoming Week Stimulates Activity

"Clash if you can" was the password during homecoming week with the introduction of an Indian Madras Day. "Silence-in-the-Halls Day" proved somewhat less than silent, but "Ugh Day" encouraged many Northwoodites to don feathers and tomahawks. As usual, the baby picture contest drew confident, as well as wild, guesses as to the identity of football players who were disguised behind diapers and high chairs. "Booster Button Day" and "Red and Black Day" completed the week's activities. Later the Car Decoration Contest and the Bonfire marked a fiery beginning to weekend festivities.

At the football game with Gaithersburg on Saturday afternoon, enthusiasm reached a peak with the halftime show and the announcement of Homecoming Queen, Peggy Kelley, who was crowned at the "Pigskin Ball" Saturday night. In a red, orange, and brown setting, the "Nightcaps" provided the music for the evening which climaxed the week's activities.

Twelfth grade counselor, Mr. Kyle Wilson, smiles with approval as senior Peggy Kelly is speechless following the announcement that whe will be Northwood's 1964 Homecoming queen.

Receiving applause from her court—Jean Taylor, Jean Pelecanos, Jean Fairchild, and Patsy Brown– Peggy Kelley graciously thanks the student body for electing her to be queen.

Senior Class Presents Inherit the Wind

Performed for three nights, Inherit the Wind by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee proved successful for the senior class and entertaining for the audience. Stuart Bannett, as Henry Drummond, and Jeff Streitfeld, as Matthew Harrison Brady, played the lead roles in the controversial trial based on the famous Scopes Monkey case. A large supporting cast and an elaborate set, including an offset witness stand, a jury box, and a spectator section, added realism to the colorful play. A new dramatic device added by the director, Mr. David Gammons, to school productions was the integration of the cast with the audience as part of the act for the senior play.

Wonderland Keeps Season's Tempo

Under a white crepe paper canopy, subtly tinted by blue spotlights, the senior class-sponsored Winter Wonderland Dance saw its successful fruition. Couples posed for souvenir pictures in an authentic horse-sleigh, while a package-filled dog sled adorned the cafeteria hallway. A colorfully decorated Christmas tree crowned the red and green setting. In the gym two life size snow men stood silently beside the steps leading to the stage as the princesses filed between them. By choosing an especially lucky charm, Ann Commerford became the Winter Wonderland Queen of 1964. The Starlanders provided music for the evening, which proved both profitable to the senior class and enjoyable to all who attended.

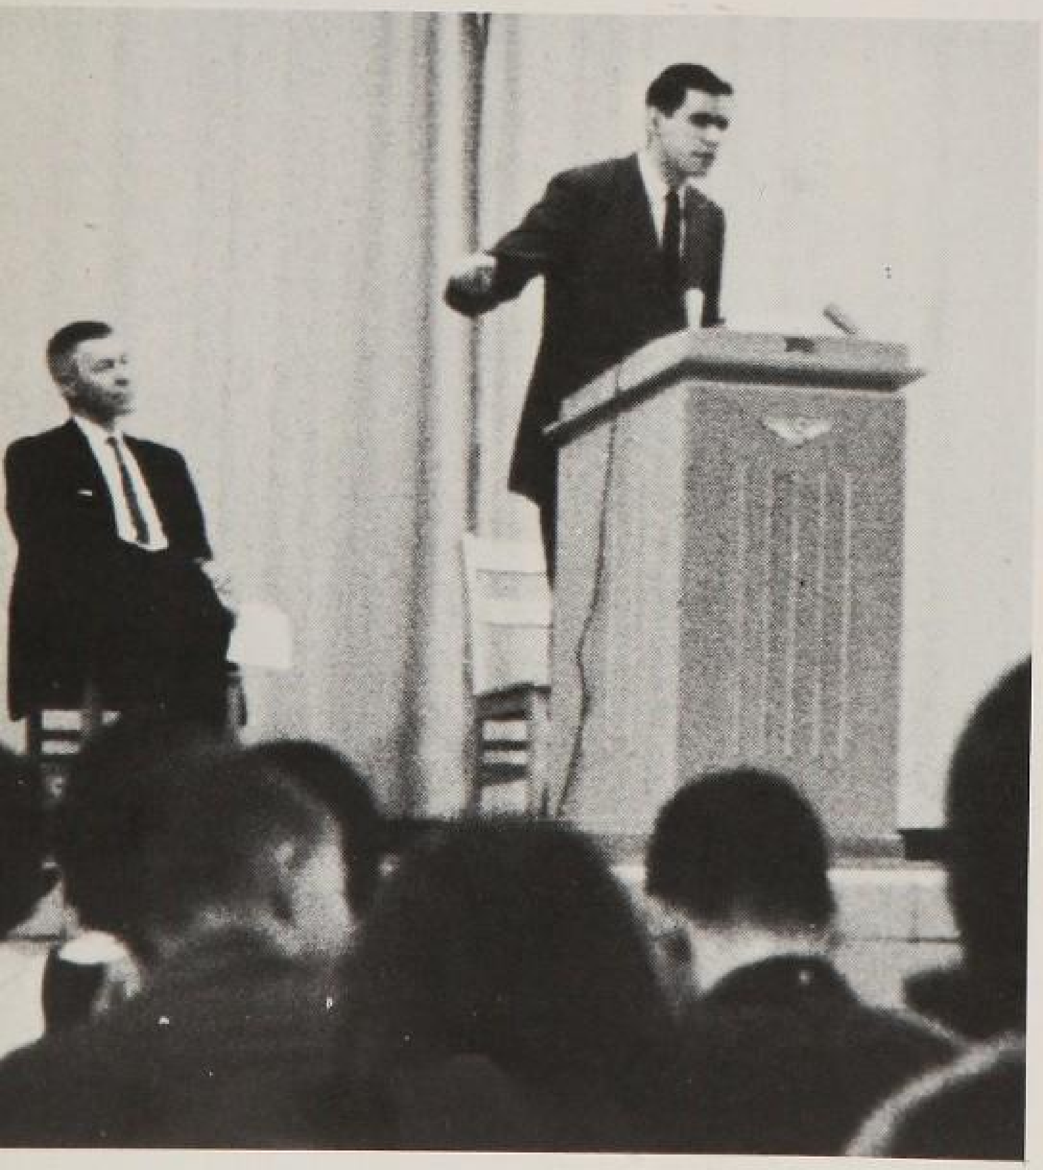
Education Advances in Every Direction

Students found that learning is more than a classroom experience. Field trips to the National Gallery of Art introduced classes to the flavor of great art. Among other assembly speakers, alumnus Dave Carrasco told of building libraries in Puerto Rico. Concert choir, band, and orchestra programs emphasized the work of Northwood's musical groups. The band received its highest honor in an invitation to march in the New Orleans Mardi Gras Parade.



At the brotherhood assembly Dave Carrasco speaks about Puerto Rico.

To help promote spirit, Mr. Packard speaks at the winter pep assembly.

Activities Break the Monotony of Study

Junior leads, Ralph Glickman, Karen Sprintzin, and Steve Copy rehearse on stage.

Memorizing chemistry formulas and reciting foreign verb conjugations may have been an important part of school life, but the spark was provided by well-planned activities. All-school activities such as the annual Vice-Versa Dance and Dog-Patch Day gave the year its social impetus.

Profitable junior events added to the total activity picture. Dealing with the problem of a young man's rebellion against society, the junior play, "The Devil's Disciple," offered an evening of entertainment set in eighteenth century New Hampshire. Led by Steve Cope, Stephanie Katz, Jon Banks, and Karen Sprintzin, the cast gave an outstanding performance under the direction of Miss Phyllis Cartwright. Climaxing the year, juniors danced into Some Enchanted Evening at the semi-formal junior prom in May.

Senior skit members Phil Edgren, Sue Goldfarb, Nick Brill, Laurie Tarnove, Anita Siskind, Mike Greenberg, and Stu Bannett formulate the hilarious play.

Graduating Class Accepts Life's Challenge

Jeffrey Streitfeld helps Bill Sumner with his senior beanie in homeroom.

Mixing the fanciful with the fancy, the hectic Senior Week climaxed the activities of an equally exciting year. The four days of graduation oriented events began with a Tuesday evening banquet at the Peter Pan Restaurant. The following two days, Turnabout Day and Honor-the-Senior Day recognized the achievements of the members of the Class of '65. Friday began as Bermuda Day, with the annual skit spoofing the teachers. The perfect end for a thrilling week, the Senior Prom was held at the Sheraton Park Hotel. Wrapped in soft music and dim lights, memories of the evening became inseparably involved with memories of the past three years at Northwood.

Approaching graduation with mixed emotions, seniors remembered with pleasure the activities that brightened their high school careers and lightened the load of demanding curriculum. With graduation, seniors came to the crossroads of college and career and faced the decisions that would mold their futures.

At the graduation ceremony at Northwood, Linda Frowert happily receives her diploma from Principal Mr. Harold Packard.

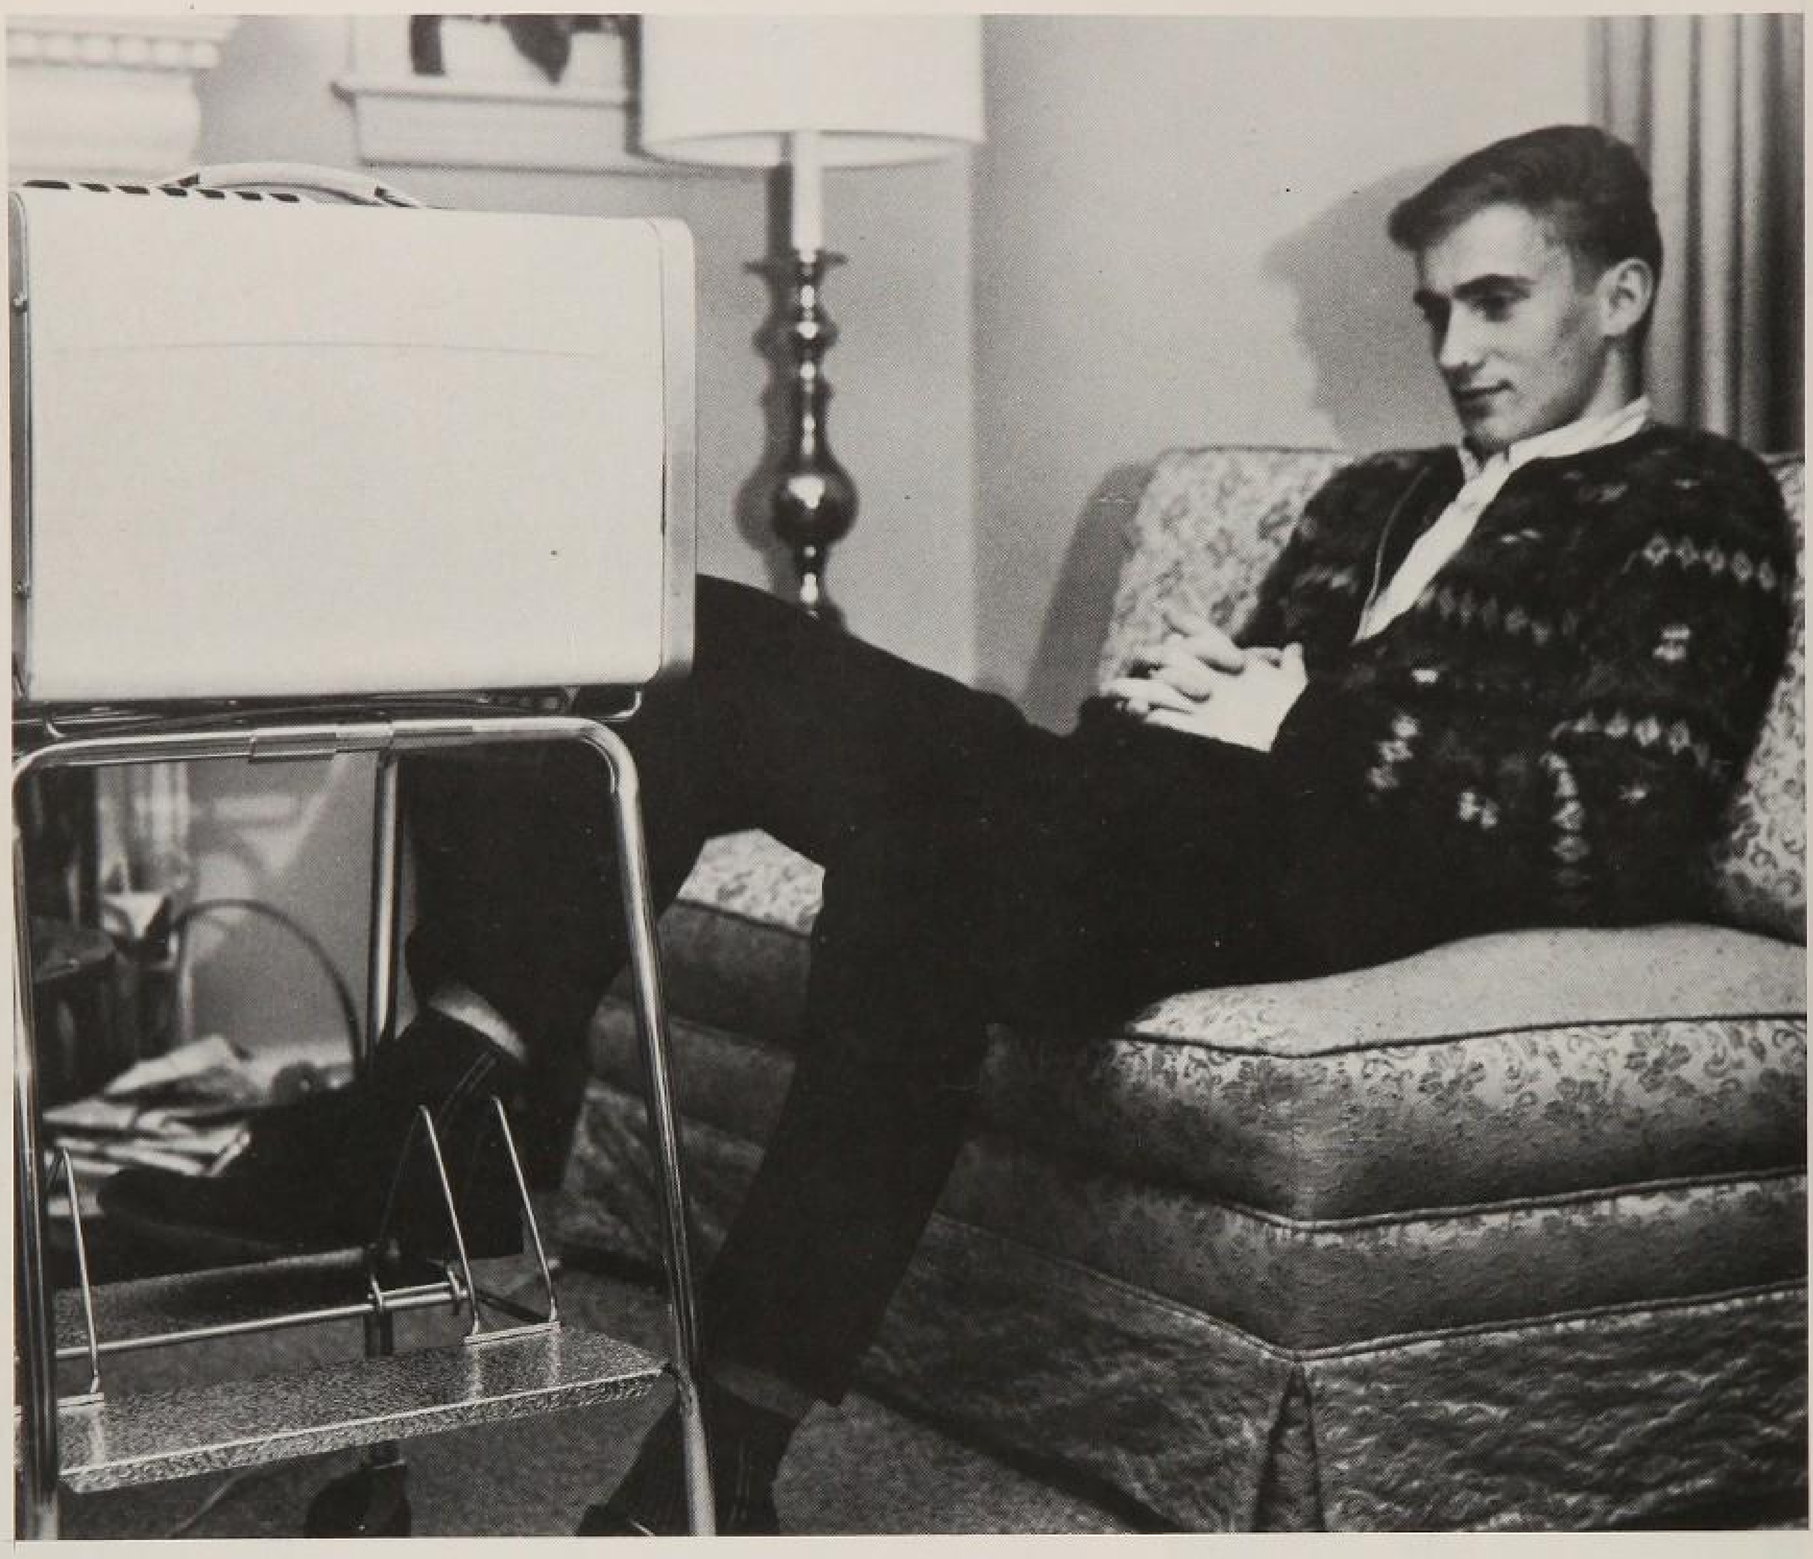
On Turnabout Day Karen J. Williams discusses a French novel with one of Mrs. Boone's classes.



Relaxing in the comforts of his American home, Sandy Sandbukt, Northwood's exchange student from Norway, intently watches his favorite television show.

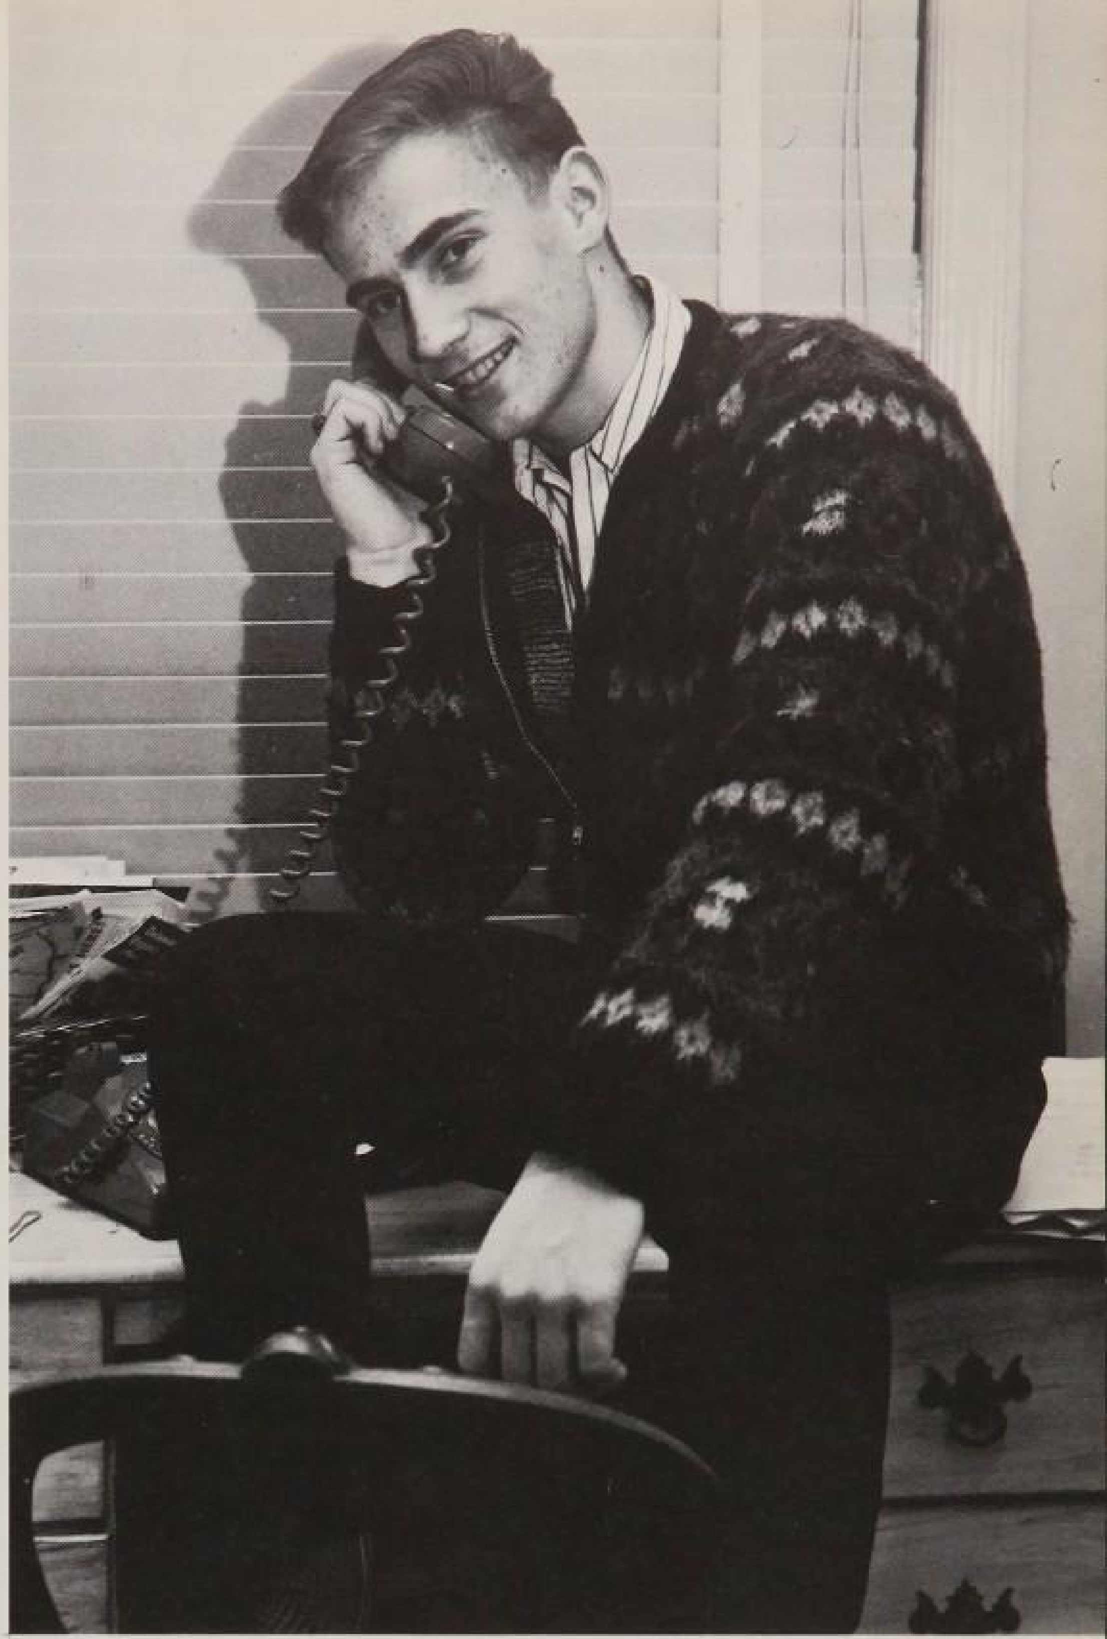
Field Service Brings International Flavor

Good will through understanding was promoted by the American Field Service at Northwood. Working closely with the A.F.S. helped our two exchange students, Øyvind Sandbukt from Norway and Isabel Alvarez from Spain, get acquainted with our community and school customs, as well as with the American people.

Sponsored by Mrs. Geoghegan and Mrs. Eiss, the club promoted such activities as a bake sale and a Peace Corps Assembly. An American Field Service Assembly in February presented an opportunity for our students to learn more about Sandy and Isa as well as to hear the views of foreign students now attending Blair. A student from Springbrook who had participated in the Americans Abroad program introduced the program and told of her experiences.



Sandy Sandbukt cordially receives a phone call for his hostess Mrs. Huss.

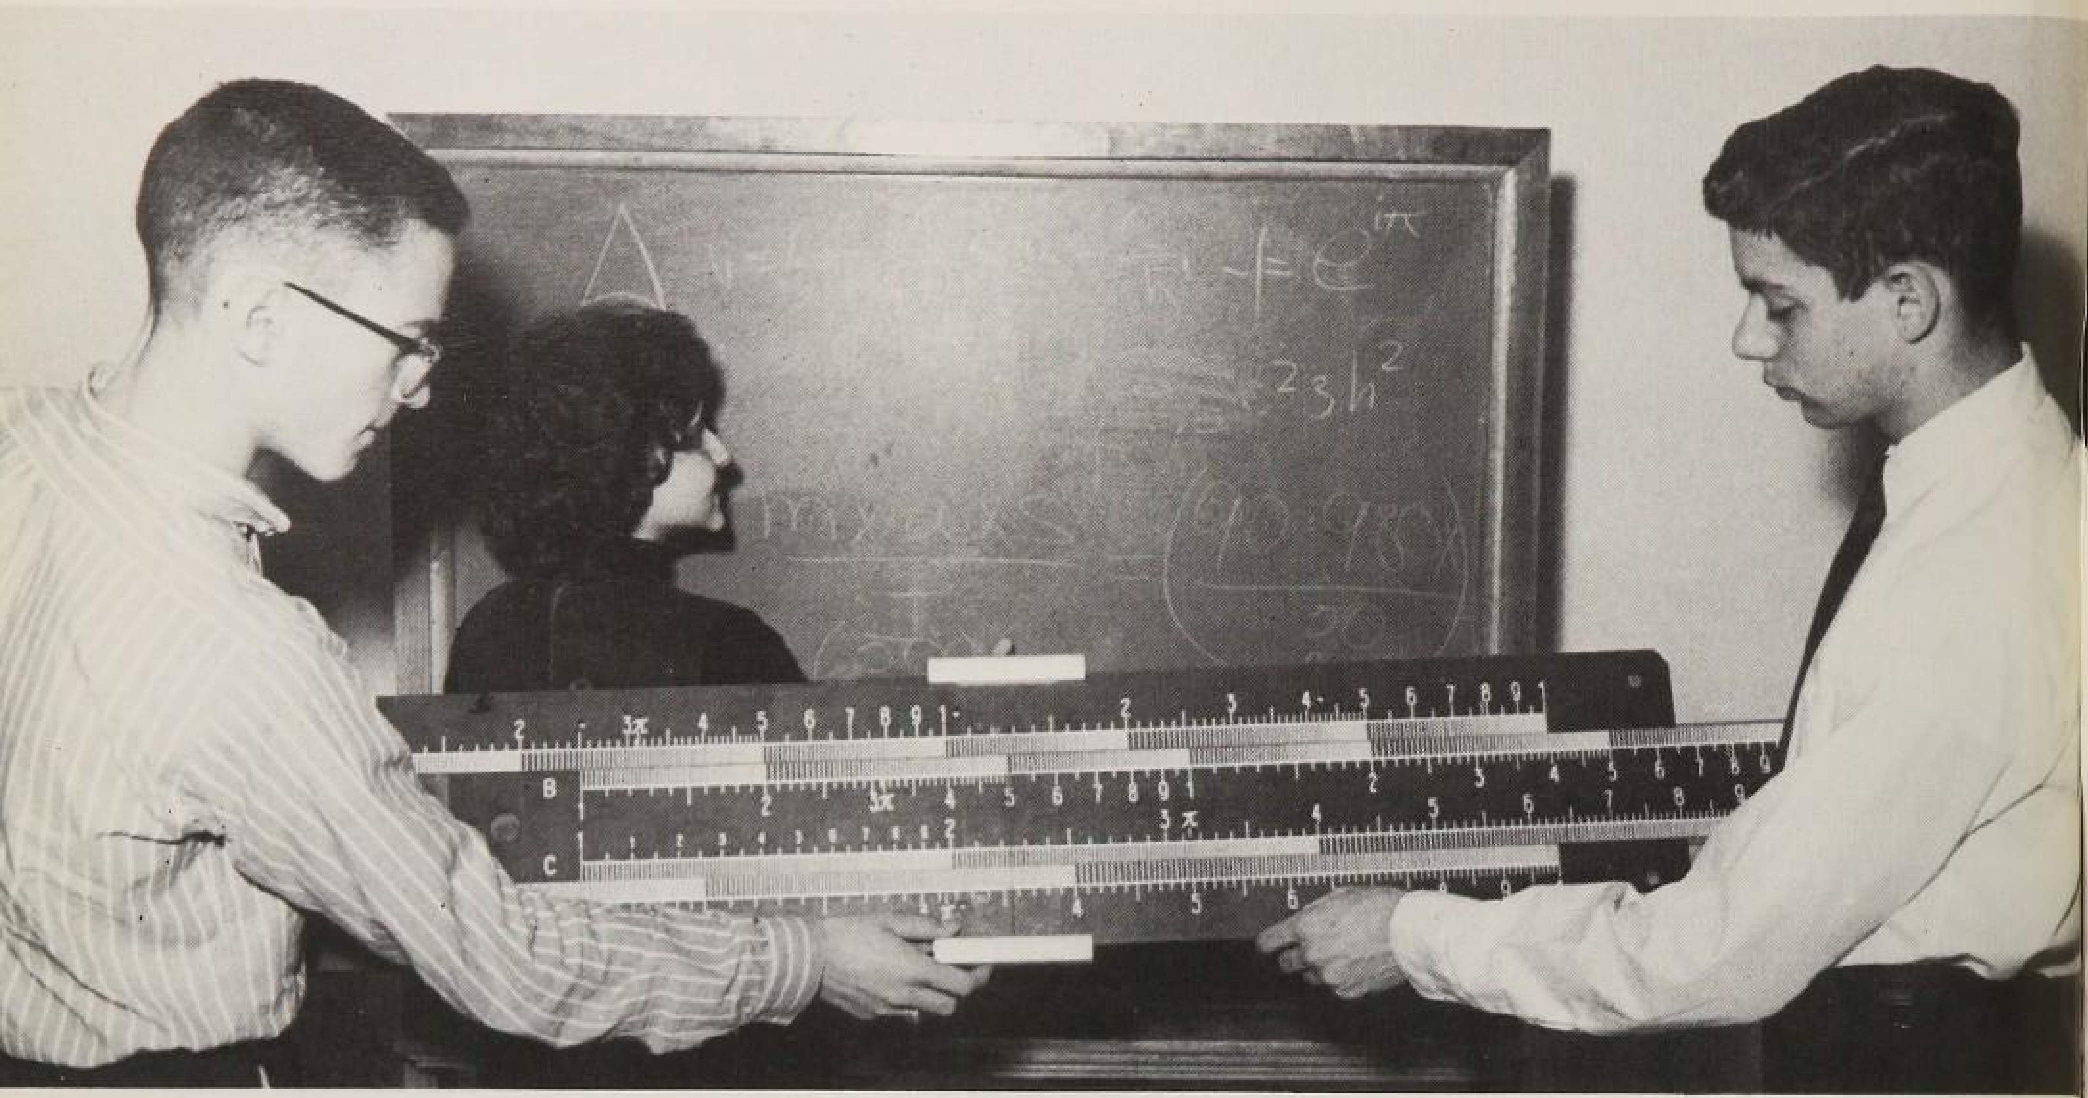
BASK T



Using the slide rule to avoid tedious mathematical computation, Steve Goldin and Dave Seeman assist Jean Abramson in working a challenging problem.

Northwood's Math Honor Society is a local chapter of the national organization Mu Alpha Theta. The society honored students who have exceptional mathematical ability and gave them the opportunity to increase their appreciation and understanding of mathematics. This was done through presentation of lectures by professional mathematicians and by students who have extensive knowledge in a specialized field of mathematics. Some of the more stimulating programs included lectures on statistics, probability, and matrices. At one meeting a student discussed with the members the actuarial test given by the Mathematics Association of America together with the Society of Actuaries.

Another stimulus to outstanding math students was the math team. Composed of ten members, headed by student Roy Smith, the mathletes periodically held meets with teams of area high schools. This year's members maintained their reputation as one of the leading math teams in the area.

Planning the Conference on American Civilization, which Northwood co-sponsored with Blair and Einstein, Jean Spencer and Michael Greenberg join efforts.

Superior Achievement Merits Recognition

Students outstanding in Scholarship, Leadership, Service, and Character are recognized in the inductions of Northwood's chapter of the National Honor Society. Fifty-eight seniors were tapped in the fall induction, adding to the thirty-seven inducted last year.

Honor Society members contribute to the school through a free tutoring service offered to all students in need of supplementary instruction.

Northwood's chapter of the Honor Society together with the Citizenship Committee co-sponsored the Conference on American Civilization with Blair and Einstein. The conference, held at Blair, explored such fields as moral and ethical values in American society, trends in American literature, theater, and politics, as well as outer space and The Great Society.

After the spring ceremony, in which five percent of the junior class was inducted into the society, elections were held for next year's officers.

Societies Encourage Linguistic Excellence

Acknowledging achievement in journalistic endeavors such as the Red and Black and the ARROWHEAD, the Quill and Scroll Society inducted new members in the spring.

Exceptional students in the field of Spanish were given special recognition by the Spanish Honor Society. Furthering an interest expressed by the members, the society visited the Pan American Building in Washington, D.C., where exhibits offered a view of Latin American culture. Climaxing the year, the Society toured the New York World's Fair, where pavillions displayed the increasing importance of Spanish-speaking nations.

Le Societe Honoraire de Francais honors those students who have shown high achievement in French for two or more years. Members lunched at a French restaurant and visited the theater to see French movies and plays. In addition, students having difficulties in French were helped by the Honor Society's tutoring program. Activities at meetings included the production of French plays and lectures about France, its culture, and its people.

Officers Lead in Good Citizenship

Student Congress activity keeps Rodney Calvert and JoAnn Murray busy.

Making the theory of student government work in practice is the responsibility of the Executive Committee. Composed of the appointed chairmen of the standing committees and the elected officers of the Student Congress, it formulates and administrates the programs of the Representative Assembly. Meeting daily during sixth period, the committee assures the smooth functioning of Northwood's student government.

Chairman Jean Spencer and the members of the Citizenship Committee had a year full of activities as they promoted good citizenship, in the school, in the community, and among students. The year began with an impressive assembly in September to induct Student Congress officers. In November, the committee sponsored the registration, voting and assembly for the Mock National Election. Registration procedures and a lively debate on the election issues prepared students for their future role as citizens.

Students found the committee's postal service before the Christmas holidays a great convenience. In April, members added their efforts to the American Civilization Conference at Blair, and in May they organized the Student Congress elections. Looking ahead, they prepared the helpful student handbooks for the next year's sophomores.

School Activities Extend to the Community

Northwood's variety of activities was well publicized by the Out-of-School Publicity Committee. For such important events as the band's fund-raising spaghetti dinner, the committee increased the number of patrons by informing the community of time, place, and cost. Students of our own school were kept up to date about the affairs of neighboring schools with colorful posters and frequent announcements. Through articles in local newspapers and advertisements on radio stations, our activities were brought to the attention of a wide range of people. Regular reporter Eileen Hand, who represented Northwood on WINX Radio, presented school news for fifteen minutes every Saturday morning. Our image in the community depended on the representation of the Out-of-School Publicity Committee.

Publicity Keeps School Informed

Informing the student body of school activities, the members of the In-School Publicity Committee employed many unique and colorful methods. Posters and runners made at the regular weekly meetings decorated the walls with school spirit and announced upcoming events of importance.

Silk screen posters gave a more finished appearance to notices of other activities. Capturing the attention of more students, dynamic bulletin boards and showcases were effective means of advertising.

Guests from the Academy of Holy Names who wanted to start a similar committee at their own school were given a tour of Northwood to observe our organization in action.

Revolutionary changes in the decor of the gym were brought about by members of the Decorators Committee. Hours before a dance, these students began preparing the decorations and setting up the canopy across the gym.

Organizing school dances and taking part in school spirit week were the main accomplishments of the Social Committee. Difficulties occurred in securing chaperones, refreshments, and bands.

On the first day of school, teachers found apples in their mail boxes welcoming them back to school. In addition, the Social Committee sponsored the Christmas door-decorating contest to promote school spirit and spark creativity.

Anxious to attend Northwood's Vice-Versa Dance, Judi Tal and Barbara Reck buy tickets from Sheila Blanken and Debbie Ripps, members of the Social Committee.

As a project of the welfare committee, Carol Glenn, Leta Naugle, Carol Ackermann, and Bonnie Tabakin promote school spirit by bottling candy pep pills.

Committees Give Inspiration and Insight

Careful planning of Welfare Committee members resulted in two successful School Spirit Weeks, which students supported by buying pennants, buttons, and pep pills. The organization also sponsored a show by Maryland's gymkhana troupe to raise money for the Student Congress.

Extending its projects beyond the school, the committee sponsored a toy drive during the Christmas season, a canned food campaign, and, later in the year, participated in a "Save the Children" project.

Acting as a source of inspiration to the student body, the Chaplain's Committee was responsible for many school services and activities. The Public Address Sub-committee handled morning announcements and invocations. The success of the Brotherhood and Thanksgiving Assemblies was credited to the Chaplain's Committee.

Working with the Welfare Committee, members brought pumpkins to patients at Children's Hospital. Teachers and students who were ill or who lost a member of their family received flowers and cards of sympathy from the committee.

Cordial greetings were offered all visitors and newcomers to Northwood by the Hospitality Committee. Sophomores were given a complete orientation, and receptions were held for many visitors, including those who toured Northwood for the Washington International Center. In addition, members sent Christmas cards to students of other schools to promote interschool friendship.

Committee members sponsored bake sales, provided refreshments at dances, and worked on the All School Production to earn money for the support of Lee Yong Sun, Northwood's Korean orphan, as well as for extra gifts on her birthday and at Christmas.

Stationed at strategic positions throughout the school, the patrols devoted two periods a day to cleaning the cafeteria and cleaning the halls.

One of Northwood's fastest growing committees, the Safety Committee promoted a campaign for the installation of a sidewalk on University Boulevard and sponsored a Safety Check Lane for motorists. The committee backed the administration in the solution of the parking problem and contributed to the success of the bumper sticker permits. In March, members organized a Safety Assembly.

Students Improve Safety of Surroundings

Throughout the school the Building and Grounds Committee is responsible for many jobs that are often taken for granted. Members gave our totem pole proper care to retain its appearance and insure its longevity. Also in the courtyard, concrete benches received finishing touches as a result of the work of committee members. Making an addition to the students' voice in school affairs, the committee initiated and maintained a suggestion box. During the winter, an enthusiastic Cafeteria Clean-Up Drive promoted neatness and economy at lunchtine. A major project of the year was the purchase and planting of trees to improve the appearance of the school's surroundings.

Finding the key to success, the Keyettes offered their services to the school and community wherever they found the need. Bake sales raised money for the Peace Corps and for the Children's Convalescent Home. For Valentine's Day, members sang for patients at the University Nursing Home and Holy Cross Hospital, and as a continuous service project, they administered an exercise program to a mentally retarded child in the Northwood area.

Friday mornings during extended homerooms the members of the Girls' Sports Association met to plan their activities for the year. During football season the girls sold Fritos and potato chips at games and assisted the N Club with Homecoming activities. A highlight of the year was a slumber party. In February the club sponsored an exciting student-faculty basketball game, and in the spring they planned a club camping trip.

Quick to volunteer, always ready to do a job and do it well, the Girls' Service Club served the school and the community. In addition to handing out programs at school assemblies, and serving at the National Honor Society reception and at the Spaghetti Dinner, members sponsored a bake sale to help our band go to New Orleans. Besides collecting donations for the Heart Fund and the March of Dimes, the club organized a trip to Junior Village. At Christmas, the girls collected assorted gifts which were presented to patients at Springvale Hospital.

Clubs Spark Spirit, Benefit Community

Northwood's most enthusiastic club proved that school spirit is contagious. During the fall, members of the Pep Club sold candy bars and baked goods to raise money for black-skirted uniforms. A flash card section provided a unique boost to school spirit.

Establishing itself as a self-supporting organization, the Circle N Society raised money for the annual Circle N awards by checking coats at all school dances. As a service project, members polished the trophies in the main trophy case.

Young Librarians Promote Reading

Furthering student use of the library was the main purpose of the Library Club. Other objectives were to aid in the maintenance of the library and to encourage general interest in books.

Helping to achieve their objectives, a paperback book sale lasting several days drew attention to many literary works. Contests, such as hiding a heart in a book for students to find, provided another means of stimulating interest. Prizes awarded to winners included books and certificates to Brentano's Book Store.

For a non-credit minor subject, many club members spent an hour each day working in the library as assistants. Guest speakers and field trips increased knowledge in Library Science. Miss Ruddle was invited to speak concerning the Folger Library. Members also took a trip downtown to see the Folger Library and the Library of Congress.

Actors and Crew Co-ordinate Productions

Seven candles were lit, and the formal induction of the Thespian Society began. Each light symbolized one phase of dramatics. Later in the ceremony, which took place in January and June, new members learned about the founding of the Society.

As an honorary organization, the Society recognized outstanding ability in the dramatic arts. Membership is based upon a point system, requiring ten points for elligibility. Points are awarded to both actors and backstage helpers.

Maintenance of supplementary equipment such as record players and films was the task of the two members of the Audio-Visual Club. Acting as a service organization, these students could often be seen searching for projectors, bulbs, and other equipment. Credit for the clear and effective lighting and staging techniques for many Northwood productions belongs to the boys. Following such events, responsibility for the careful return of the apparatus lay with the Audio-Visual crew.

Working closely with these boys, Northwood's Stage Crew constructed sets and handled microphones for all plays and assemblies.

Achievements Surpass Science Classroom

Actively showing an interest in the many facets of science, the members of the Science Club were offered opportunities to gain a more complete understanding of scientific principles. Each week the club helped fifth and sixth grade students at McDonald Knolls and Forest Knolls Elementary Schools obtain a background in the basic biological and physical sciences that have become so important in today's world. In addition, members made free use of the chemistry and physics laboratories at Northwood for independent scientific research and free, but adequately guided experimentation after school.

Amateur radio operators kept in mind their immediate goal of earning their licenses as they practiced to improve their Morse Code speed and learned to follow standard operating procedures. Looking farther into the future, members made plans to equip Northwood with a radio set-up of its own. At the meetings, they helped fellow hams with code drills and discussed equipment for home sets.

Languages Express Various Cultures

Latin, though designated a dead language, has been saved from an early grave by the members of the Latin Club. The league leading Latin Scrabble team was an integral part of the organization. Members circulated through the student body to obtain signatures for a county-wide petition directed to the school board. Through this petition, they hoped to introduce Latin into the seventh grade curriculum. Pegasus, a newspaper written in both English and Latin, was published four times a year by the students themselves. The gala festivities of the ancient Romans were brought to life in the annual Latin Banquet in May. Students and faculty members, all dressed in togas enjoyed the multi-course meal, the skit, and the slave auction planned by the club.

Furthering their knowledge of the Spanish language was one of the objectives of the Spanish Club. With the Spanish Honor Society, members visited the Pan American Union and the World's Fair.

Language Study Aids World Co-operation

Encouraging an interest in the French language, people, and customs, the French Club planned various activities to stimulate French students. Appreciation of French art was the objective of a trip to the National Gallery of Art in Washington. Another successful project was a get-together with other French Clubs of area high schools. Each club prepared some short entertainment. Northwood's French Club performed a short musical comedy written by Neil Moyer and directed by Karen J. Williams and titled "Le Fabriqueur des Bon-bons de Kiev."

Besides providing an opportunity for members to increase their understanding of French culture and people, the French Club contributed to the betterment of the school. The club sponsored a bake sale in order to raise money for French books which they donated to our school library. These books were the first in a foreign language section in Northwood's library.

Another stimulus to study in foreign cultures, the German Club visited the German Embassy to hear a thought provoking lecture on education and the history of German-American relations.

Furthering the enjoyment of folksinging throughout the school, members of the Folksinging Society exhibited their talents at meetings and outside activities. Observation of professional singers at the Cellar Door helped members improve their own style. Various institutions in the community were treated to performances by the society. Through the club's activities, members studied the art of the folk song—popular and traditional, foreign and American.

For those interested in the healing arts, the Medical Careers Club offered an opportunity for gaining extra-curricular knowledge. Such speakers as the head of the nurses' training program at a college, a biochemical researcher from the National Institute of Health, and a blood expert from Walter Reed Army Medical Center enlivened meetings. Other discussions centered around psychiatry and the Food and Drug Administration. Representatives from the group attended the Annual Spring Convention of the Future Nurses and Medical Careers Clubs of Maryland to exchange ideas with other schools in the state.

Developing Talents Express Personalities

Matching their wits against those of their opponents, members of the Bridge Club found a real challenge in the game of skill, thought and strategy. Polishing up their trumps and finesses, they held regular practice sessions in preparation for competition. Beginning players improved their techniques in a class which sought out and trained new talent for meets with other schools. Within the club itself, sponsor Mrs. Emily Gray directed duplicate tournaments which were the qualifying factors in determining which teams were to compete in interscholastic events.

Varied Hobbies Fill Extracurricular Hours

Traditionally an active part of Northwood, the Stamp and Coin Club expanded its activities this year. Under the guidance of Mr. Ostrinsky, club sponsor, members assembled a window display and staged an auction. Planned for the purpose of providing a medium of exchange for collectors, monthly meetings were almost entirely devoted to trading, buying, and selling among the members. Highlight of the year's activities, the auction, climaxed a steady promotional campaign and resulted in the sale of many fine stamps and coins. The year's activities culminated in a visit to a meeting of the Silver Spring Philatelic Society.

Designed to promote an increasingly popular form of recreation, the Bowling Club provided a chance for bowlers to try their skills against those of students from Northwood and other area schools in league competition.

One of the top teams in the Metropolitan Chess League, Northwood's Chess Club supplied an opportunity for students to improve their concentration and game skills in match play and tournaments.

Lettermen, Wheels Set Service Records

Northwood's N Club included all boys who had earned letters through participation in athletic events. Especially active this year, it began by co-sponsoring the homecoming events and the annual faculty-senior basketball game.

In the spring, area teams were invited to Northwood's Invitational Track Meet. N Club members publicized the meet and acted as judges. To build their treasury, members processed and sold programs at all home athletic events. Coaches and athletes were honored at the annual banquet sponsored by the N Club. Completing the year with community service, the lettermen worked with the Montgomery County Recreation Department to help insure the success of the Junior Olympics for county youth.

On alternating Wednesday nights boys recognized as outstanding school leaders met and planned Wheel Club activities. Always ready to usher at any school program and aid other organization in charity drives, the club kept Northwood's school sign up to date publicizing all school events. Serving the community and the nation, members helped prepare a summer camp for underprivileged children. In addition, members collected money, clothing and toys for the Heart Fund, the "Save the Children," and Christmas drives.

Regular Concerts Show Versatility

Assuming an increasingly larger role in the cultural life of the school, the Concert Choir participated in several assemblies and evening performances throughout the year. In addition to its traditional part in the Thanksgiving, Christmas, Brotherhood, and National Honor Society Assemblies, the group presented a lively program in the first exclusively Concert Choir Assembly. Selections on this program included two popular folk songs, adaptations of nursery rhymes, and an arrangement of a poem by Robert Frost. Evening concerts provided a worthwhile opportunity for students to enjoy live performances of classical and semi-classical works.

Each day during school spirit week, a special tape recording of Northwood's Alma Mater preceded the morning announcements.

In February, twenty-five members of the group entertained appreciative youngsters at the Jewish Home for Retarded Children.

As in previous years, the Choir participated in Choral Day at Maryland University, where Northwood's Choir received a top rating. Closing the year, the Choir sang at Baccalaureate and Graduation.

Working for perfection, Hollace Goodman, Leslie Roberts, and Kelly Kemper find following both the director and the music essential for good singing.

Orchestra Adds Harmony to School Year

Throughout the year, the orchestra had numerous opportunities to display its talents in various programs, many in combination with the Band and Concert Choir. At Chrsitmas, a school assembly was climaxed with "Chestnuts Roasting on an Open Fire," performed by both Choir and Orchestra. The same program was also given in the evening for the parents and visitors. A student assembly in March included music ranging from popular tunes from "South Pacific" to the more difficult style of McKay's "Symphonie Miniature."

Other programs included the PTA Assembly in March and the Spring Concert given in April in co-operation with the orchestra and choir. On May 7, Orchestra Day at Maryland University, Northwood's Orchestra competed with those of other area high schools. The year was highlighted with a Music Festival in May, in which musical groups from elementary to high school level were featured.

Band Represents State at New Orleans

Frequent concerts, trips, and competition kept the Band perpetually busy last year as well as sparking interest among all students. The daily band period was spent rehearsing for football games on the field. The football season was climaxed with the homecoming game in which Northwood's Band presented a show in combination with the Band of B.C.C. Numbers performed included "Hello Dolly," "Harrigan," "Grand Old Flag," and Northwood's fight song.

Northwood's Band also participated in George Washington University's homecoming game at D.C. Stadium, In the Silver Spring Parade, in which several school bands of the area were judged, Northwood was awarded first place, winning a cash prize. Highlights of the Band Pop Concert, presented for the entire student body, were "Mr. Wonderful," and "Hootenanny." Other awarding performances were for the District Band Festival, the Cherry Blossom Parade, and Northwood's Spring Concert. Completing the school year, the band played at the graduation.

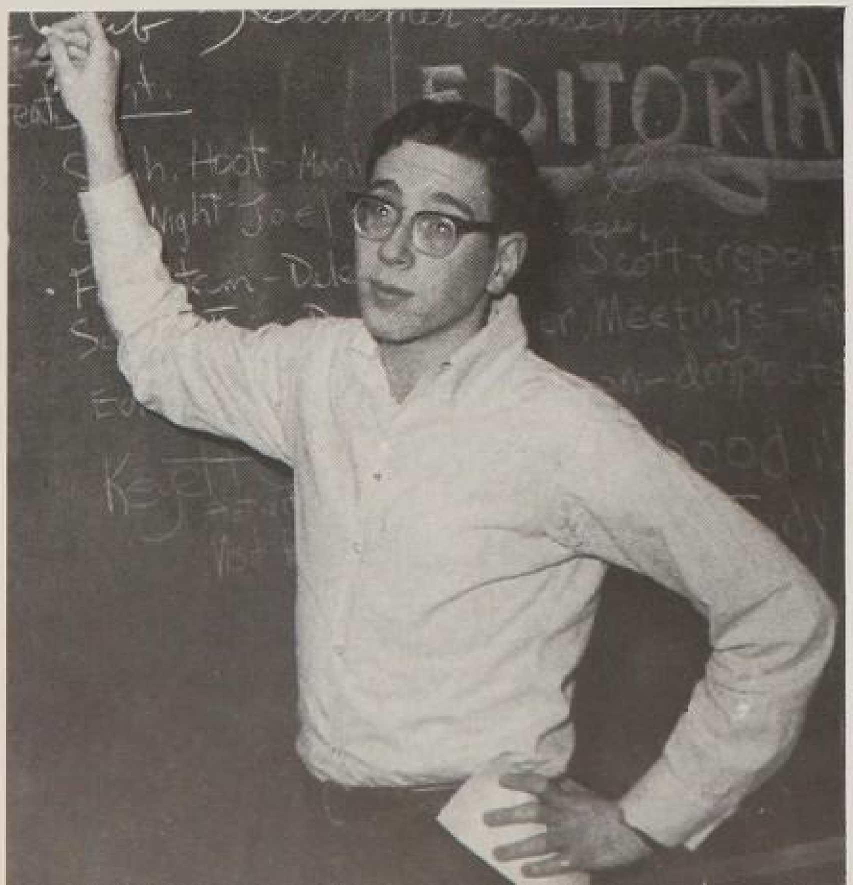
Journalistic Endeavors Achieve Excellence

Neil Moyer, editor of the RED AND BLACK, makes assignments to his staff.



Northwood's newspaper, published once a month, mirrors life at Northwood. In addition to informing and entertaining the students, the Red and Black enhanced their awareness of their place at Northwood, in the community, and in the nation. Toward this end, the newspaper voiced its concern for an All-School Production, for Children's Hospital, and for the Peace Corps. Interviews with such personalities as Mr. Lou Hazam, television producer, and news commentators David Brinkley and John Chancellor supplemented school news.

In all areas, the Red and Black maintained its outstanding reputation. Publicized nationally in the School Press Review, the paper received both an International Honor Rating and the George Gallup Award from Quill and Scroll. In addition, the Red and Black was awarded an exceptional rating from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. From the National Scholastic Press Association it received All American standing, the highest recognition given to a high school newspaper.

Judy Elliston and Mike Greenberg plan the layout for a page of school news to be entered in a contest sponsored by the Montgomery County Sentinel.

Annual Records Year of Constant Change

For members of the ARROWHEAD staff, this was a year of change. Guided by enthusiastic new sponsors, Mr. David Gammons and Mr. Robert Bowles, they devoted much time during and after school in the production of a memorable annual. A larger room provided the much-needed working and storage space that had presented such a problem in previous years.

In the 1965 ARROWHEAD, color enlivened the divider pages and end sheets, and the cover appeared in a shade newly developed by the Roebuck Company. A pictorial advertisement section and a senior index contributed to both the appearance of the book and the convenience of the reader.

Members of the staff had the opportunity to attend the fall and winter conferences of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association in New York for the improvement of high school publications. These trips provided an educational experience that helped both new and old staff members to learn proper techniques of yearbook production.

At the end of the 1964 season, Northwood found themselves without a win. In the season's opener, Coach DeMoss' Indians had a near victory over the Huskies of Peary. Later in the season, fullback Craig Brisbane was chosen player of the week by the Washington Post. Led by quarterback Brady Straub, the Indians broke several school passing records against Richard Montgomery. Northwood scored a total of thirteen points as they completed a winless season.

Finishing their 1964 season with only one victory, the junior varsity, coached by Mr. Packan, downed the Warriors of Sherwood 33-26. Their season was plagued by fumbles and interceptions leading to defeats in several important games. The offense did feature a fast backfield with Jon DeBuchananne and Pete Hyder. Their games, though often disappointing, were exciting to watch because of the sudden long gains by the backs and the pass plays by Don Delano.

Northwood's varsity cross country team finished the season defeating four teams and losing to four. Their coach Mr. Silverman, in his first year, was satisfied with their performance throughout the season. The team also placed fifth in the county meet at Wheaton Regional Park. The consistently top runner for the team was junior Marty Vigil. Other strong runners were Skip Wilhelm and John Wells. The youthful team shows promise for next year.

As the 1964-65 season began, Coach Bolyard faced the prospect of returning after a championship year with a completely new team. Because of the divided season system, this year's team was in contention for the championship throughout the year. At the conclusion of the season, the team had achieved a 10-10 record. Our eagers surprised several area teams with such upsets as their victory over the county champions, Richard Montgomery, and their sound defeat of Walt Whitman after being beaten by them in the first round.

Seniors, Bob Kelly and Chuck Harris, were among the top scorers in the county and Coach Bolyard also found pleasant surprises in the play of Jim Tortorella and juniors Johnny Meiklejohn and Denny MacDougal. Six returning lettermen should provide a firm basis for next year's squad.

Junior Varsity Compiles 7-11 Record

Mr. Frey's Junior Varsity finished their 1964-65 season with a 7-11 record. The team's top scorer was Mark Gross. Jerry Anderson, with a more than 20-point average, was an important early season asset, but at midseason he was moved to the Varsity. Several team members, such as Gary Cross and David Metelits, improved steadily and, later in the season, made substantial contributions. Mr. Frey feels that several of the Sophomores and Juniors who worked hard this year on the JV will make their presence felt on next year's varsity team.

Undefeated County Champion Brady Straub attempts a Navy ride on his way to defeating Walter Johnson's Regional Runner-up, Bob Carlson.

Wrestlers Win the Regional Tournament

As the season began, Northwood had eleven rookies on the first string. They dropped two out of ten of their dual meets and finished third in the county. In the County Tournament which followed, Northwood made a fine showing by coming up with three champions, Tom Griffin, Greg Hunt, and Brady Straub; but the Indians were beaten out for first place by an experienced Springbrook team. The following week those who placed in the Montgomery County Tournament entered the Regional Tournament. Northwood entered seven boys and all placed. Through great team effort, Northwood placed wrestlers in the finals in six of the twelve weight classes.

The brother combinations of Dave and Greg Hunt, Bill and Tom Griffin, and Bob and Jim Terrill all reached the regional finals. By this feat, Northwood established an unbeatable lead and won the Regional Championship. Northwood also had outstanding wrestler of the tournament, Bob Terrill. The success of this year's team was largely due to the excellent coaching of Mr. Robert McNelis and to the fight and determination of the wrestlers themselves. They consistently improved through the season and overcame many obstacles to finish as champions.

Several outstanding performances by individuals led Northwood's 1965 track team to the county championship. Directed by Mr. Packan, the tracksters began their drive toward their goal, the state championship, by winning the county relays. This was followed by several victories in triangular meets. The team made an excellent showing the Wakefield Invitational, among other Maryland schools, and in the Northwood Invitational, in which 23 teams participated. In the latter competition, our tracksters scored a record 122 points and nearly doubled the score of the next best team. Northwood also overcame all county opposition in the county meet with over 100 points. Outstanding in the field events were Jamie Dixson, Chuck Parker, and Craig Brisbane. New Gymkhana Team Faces Competition

Skill and good form are exemplified on the vaulting box by Karen Anderson.

For the first time Northwood presented a gymkhana team whose gymnastic skills were developed for show. Team members participated in dual and regional meets. To perfect their skills and coordination, practices were held twice a week. Culminating their year of hard work, a home show was held demonstrating their many achievements.

Cheerleaders Prompt Crowd Participation

Northwood's cheerleaders were an integral part of this year's athletic program. Their tireless enthusiasm was present at all events during football, basketball, and wrestling seasons. Selected from many candidates, these girls, under the leadership of Captain Peggy Kelley, were qualified representatives of the school's competitive spirit. A result of frequent practices, their first rate style and ability to spark crowd response never failed to enliven a game or match. Their presence was a source of pride for Northwood's teams and students.

Strong Leadership

As the 1964-65 school year began, 645 sophomores became Northwood students. With Miss Smith as the sponsor, they quickly started working and elected a class council, which wrote and adopted a constitution for the class of '67.

Determined to make the one sophomore activity permitted an event to be remembered, the officers and the council, after much debate, decided upon a unique three-in-one activity. Aptly titled "Little Indian Pow Wow", it consisted of a gym night, a hootenanny, and a slave auction held on February 6, 1965. Alan Rosenzweig was in charge of planning the committees for the various phases of the activity.

Gym night included basketball in the girls' gym, and volleyball in the boys' gym. An informal hootenanny took place in the cafeteria; however, the slave auction, held on the stage, attracted the most attention. Chris Hand's slaves sold for over thirty dollars, and the entire Pow Wow netted about two hundred dollars. One hundred dollars was given to the band for the New Orleans trip in February.

Victor Habib, Sophomore Class president, addresses a session of the class council. Under the leadership of Vic, the class had a successful year.

Addressing the first assembly of the Junior Class, Steve Cope announces the status of the treasury and discusses planned activities.

JUNIOR CLASS COUNCIL—Front Row: Mrs. Allen, sponsor; J. Liles, Vice-President; S. Cope, President; L. Allen, Secretary; J. Newberry, Treasurer. Second Row: A. Peale, A. Medbery, J. Friedenberg, D. MacKean, K. Kohler, L. Whitehead. Third Row: J. Taylor, J. Denham, A. Hausman, B. Tabakin, L. Delizia, P. Bugden. Fourth Row: T. Griffin, C. Zimmerman, C. Naehr, P. Smith, C. O'Loughlin. Back Row: S. Goldberg, M. Rochkind, R. Glickman, M. Schatzow.

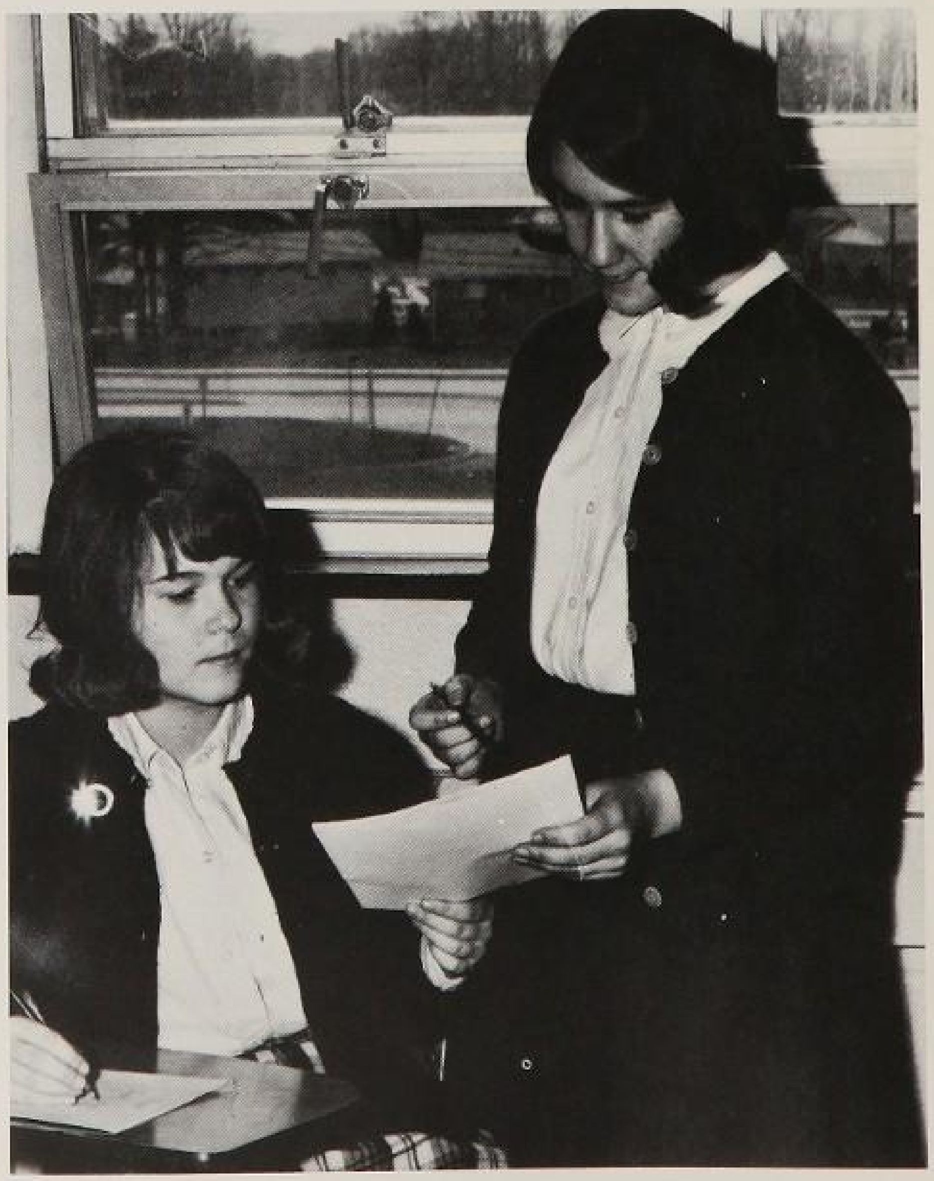
Recognition Rewards

Co-chairmen of the Junior Class Decorator's Committee, Nancy Curtin and Aldene Medbery, combine their ideas for creating atmosphere at the Junior Prom.



Active Junior Class

Encompassing the many phases of student life, the activities of this year's Junior Class provided welcome changes from the routine of study. Each event was carefully planned by the enthusiastic, hard-working class council to be a stimulating source of recreation for all participants. Headed by president Steve Cope, the representative body planned the year well in advance to include at least one activity each month throughout the year.

Designed especially for the homeroom representatives and their alternates, an informal pot luck supper at the beginning of the year gave the members of the council a chance to get acquainted with each other. The first activity sponsored by the Junior Class for the entire student body was the Thanksgiving Breakfast. It was as profitable to the class as it was enjoyable for all those who attended. Equally successful were the Junior-Senior movie and the exciting "gym-nites." The junior play, "The Devil's Disciple," displayed the admirable talents of the actively participating members of the class. Culminating the activities of the year for the Class of '66 was the much anticipated Junior Prom. The Junior Class and its council were well rewarded for their hard work.

Hurrying through the Quadrangle from their previous class, Tom Schick and Claudia White have no time to lose before their next class begins.

Reflect Class Spirit

Throughout its three years at Northwood, the Class of '65 compiled an impressive list of activities. To begin its last but most active year, the class sponsored a "United Nations" Breakfast in October. Profits from the Senior Class Play, "Inherit the Wind," the Winter Wonderland Dance, and the Junior-Senior Movie increased the treasury considerably. One addition to the traditional senior program included an informal dance after a basketball game in January.

Consisting of only four days, Senior Week nevertheless marked the high point of the year. Students received class beanies at the Senior Assembly, which began the week's activities. Tuesday night, the Peter Pan Restaurant in Urbana, Maryland, hosted the Senior Class Banquet. Later in the week, Turnabout Day and Bermuda Day sparked further spirit. On Friday night, the Senior Prom at the Sheraton Park Hotel in Washington, D.C., displayed the results of three years of concentrated class effort.

In addition to these profit-making projects, the class sponsored a drive for Children's Hospital with contributions totaling over $130. Culminating academic, social, and extra-curricular careers and commencing new and varied pursuits in college or jobs, nearly 650 seniors graduated in June.

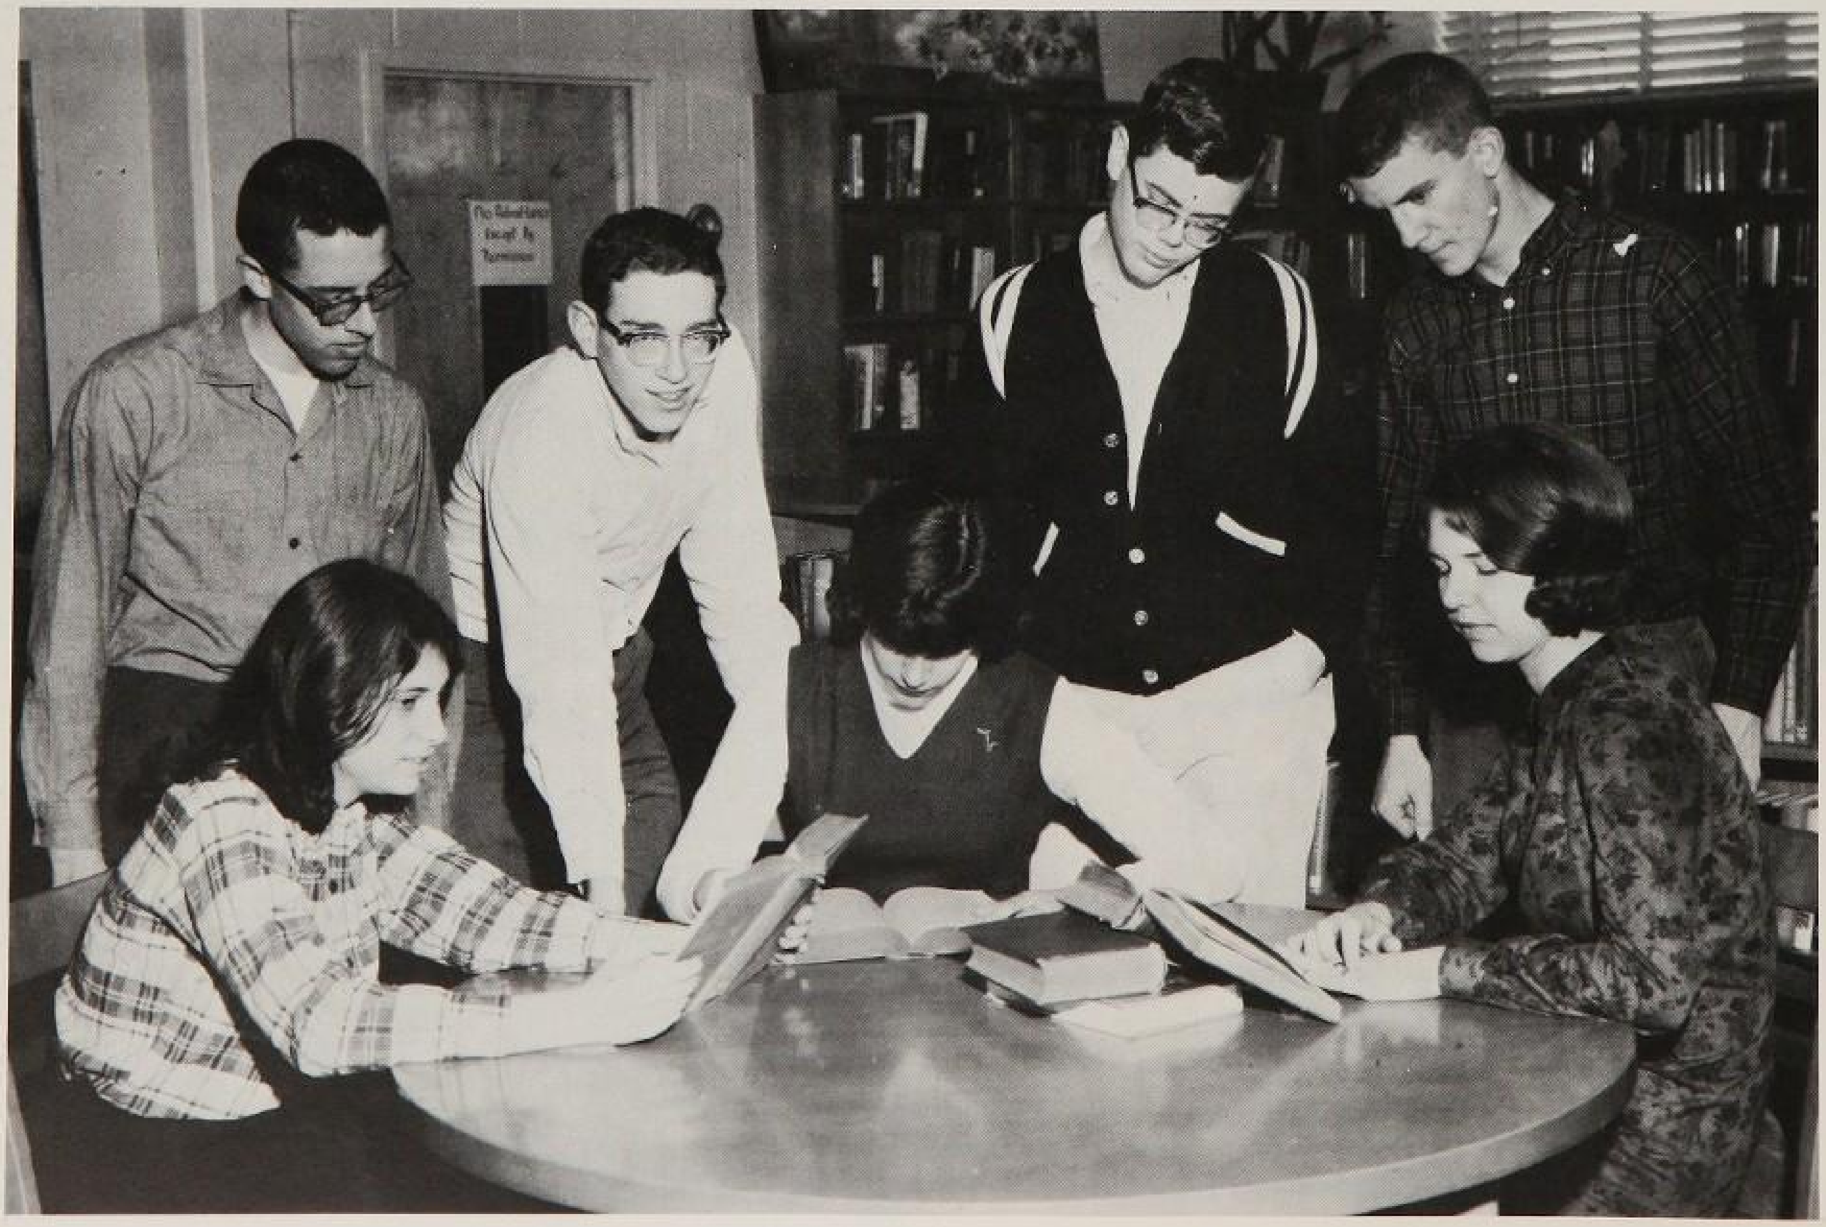
MERIT FINALISTS—Front Row: J. Lehr, J. Elliston, C. Ackermann. Back Row: A. Maltz, N. Moyer, P. Edgren, R. Calvert.



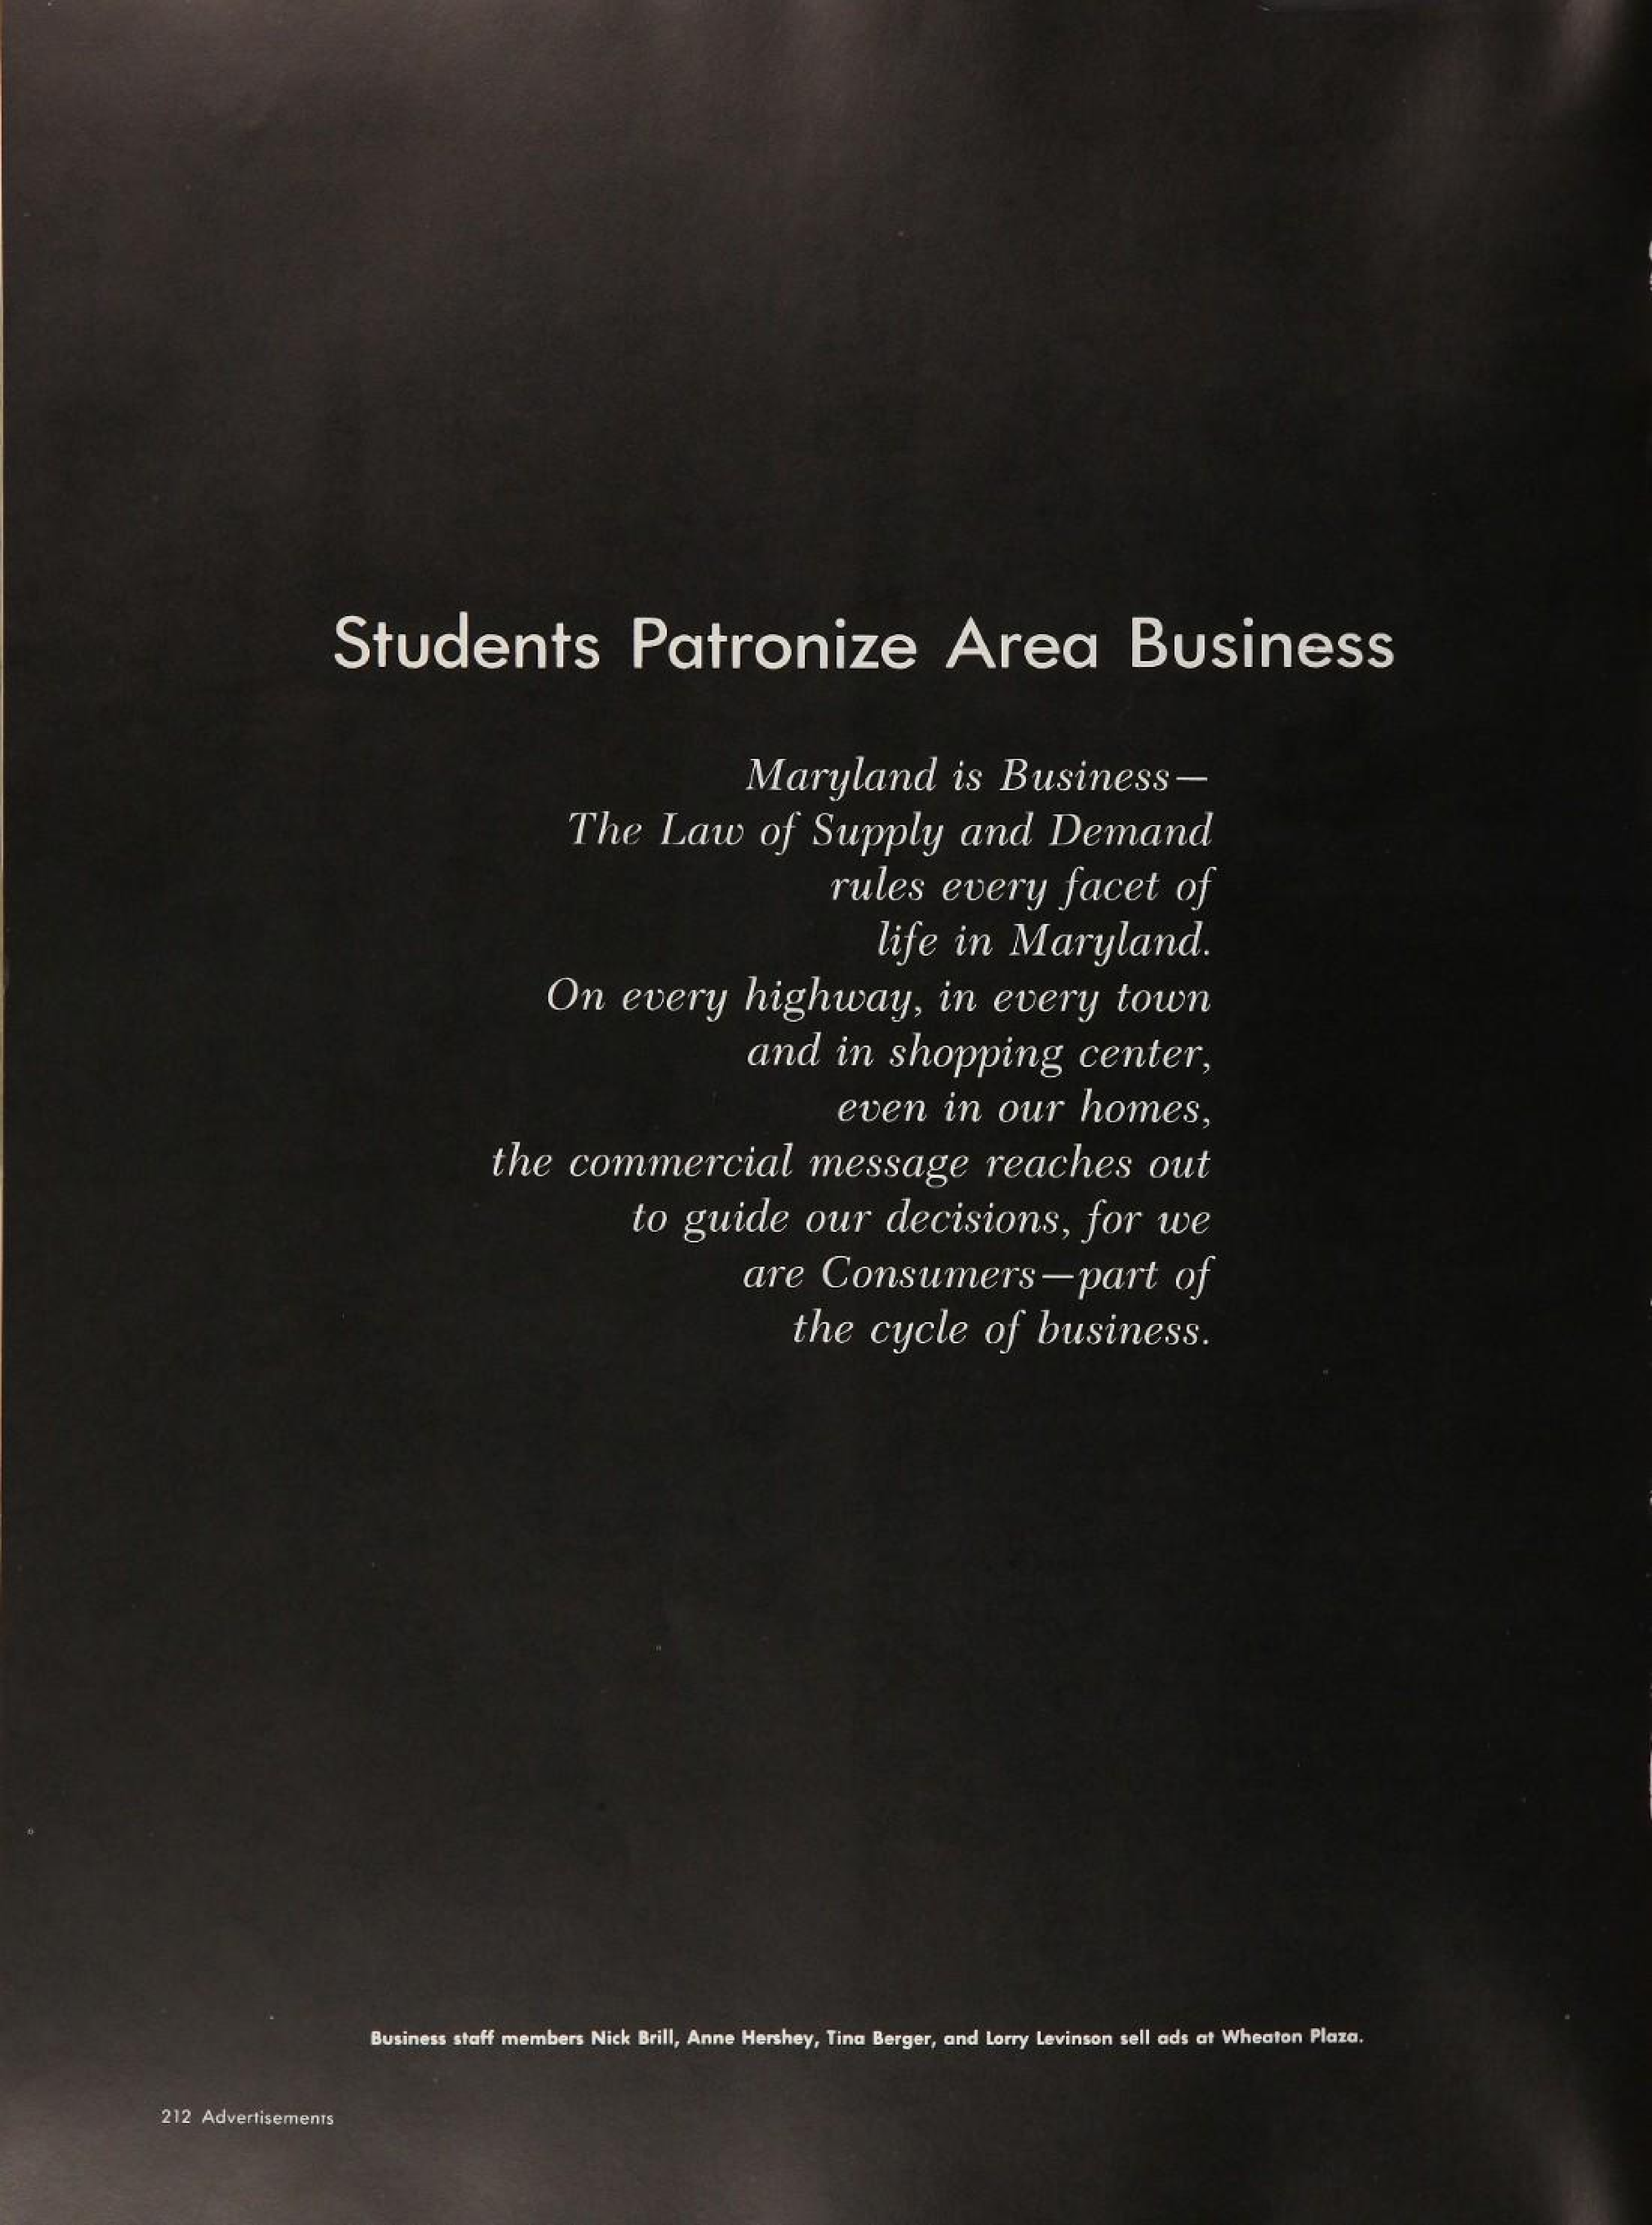
Rodney Calvert, Sydney Furash, and Edie Tepper experiment in chemistry.

At MJC, seniors Howard Alenier and Oscar Schwartz sort chemicals.

Outstanding Seniors Merit Recognition

Proving themselves to be academically able, members of the senior class participated in activities that brought them local and national recognition. The demanding school curriculum, which included introductory analysis, French 5, and Chemistry, presented a challenge to capable students. Three of our most intelligent upper classmen represented Northwood on the high school program, "It's Academic." Directed by Mr. George Thomas and Miss Phyllis Knight, they brought honor to the school, as well as to themselves.

Two outstanding students were chosen to participate in the advanced placement program offered by Montgomery Junior College. The advanced chemistry course, taken there in the afternoon, took the place of a major subject. Honored nationally by the National Merit Scholarship program, seven seniors were recognized for their scholastic ability by being chosen merit semifinalists and finally finalists.



Students Patronize Area Business

Maryland is Business—
The Law of Supply and Demand rules every facet of life in Maryland.
On every highway, in every town
and in shopping center,
even in our homes,
the commercial message reaches out to guide our decisions, for we are Consumers—part of the cycle of business.

Leisure summer hours are spent in numerous ways by Northwood students. Arnold Maltz and Dave Thomas team up for a relaxing game of tennis at the Evans Parkway Tennis Courts.

Jubilant after the last day of classes seniors Rodney Calvert and Dee Gownley happily hurry home from school.

In Wheaton Regional Park, Roberta Stein and Susan Gray ride along the peaceful bridal path, winding through part of the woods in the 500 acre park.

Editor-in-chief of the 1965 Arrowhead, Ken Fox, supervises while his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Fox, finish packing for their long awaited summer vacation.

Summer Affords Brief Rest to Maryland

In Summer, Maryland is suddenly free—
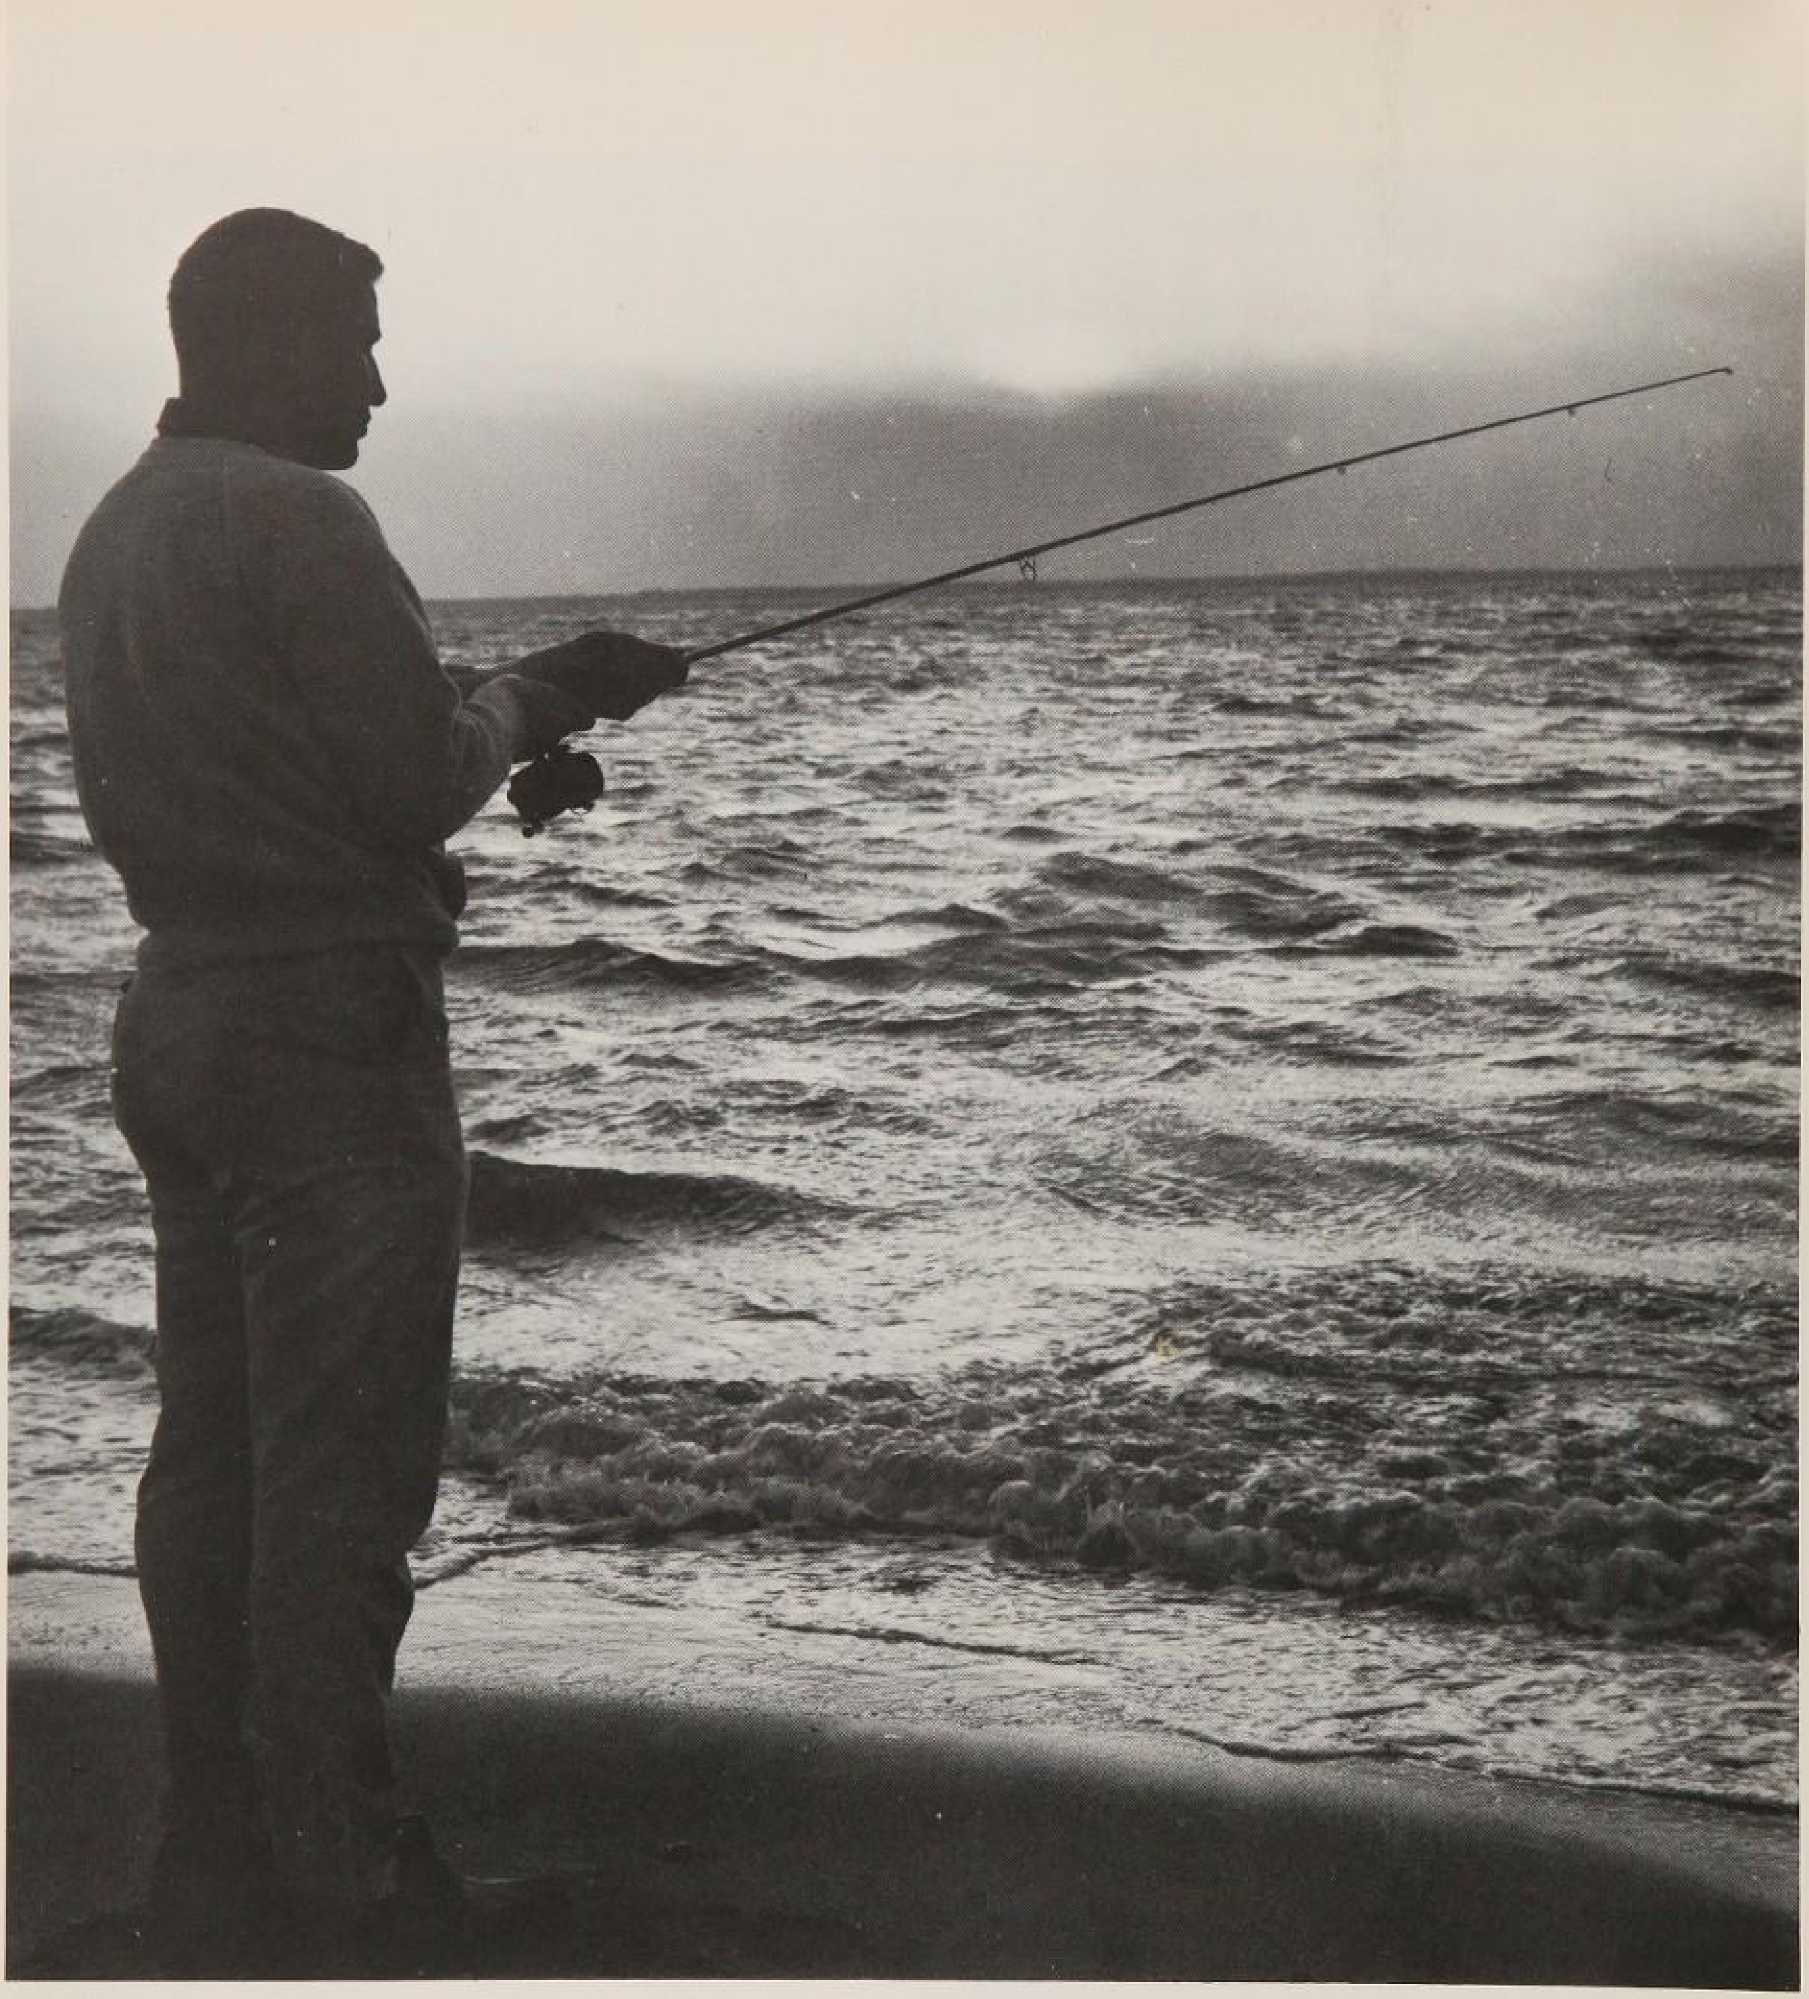
To explore the many places
Where recreation may be found;
To hike, or to swim;
Perhaps just to lie on the beach.
In these few short weeks
She must take in enough sun
To last another year.

Riding in the front seat of the first car, Dale MacKean and Bob Garvey enjoy a thrilling ride on the roller coaster at Glen Echo Amusement Park.



Northwood senior Steve Forman, fishing in the Chesapeake Bay from a Kent Island beach, hopes to catch one more fish before returning home.

Maryland Molds the Future

Northwood's students, as students anywhere, are inevitably shaped by their environment;
Maryland—complex, many-sided and constantly changing—constitutes a unique mold.
